Restless Russia.

Ireland? Yes. U. S. A.? No.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

RUSSIA'S GOVERNMENT, restless and energetic as the sea, invents a new court for factories called: "The Friendship Court."

Each factory will have its court, with workers for judge and jury. No fines or imprisonment, but other "discipline" will correct workers guilty of drunkenness, "loafing" or carelessness, dangerous to themselves and others.

UNDER THE CZARS, all Russians from moujiks to grand dukes, every rouble, every foot of land in Russia, belonged to the czar.

Stalin wants it understood that everything now belongs to the Soviet, and a workman who injures himself is injuring government property.

NEWS THAT Howard Gould's former wife, who was Katherine Clemmons, is dead, will interest the old with long memories. When Victoria was on the throne, John L. Sullivan, champion of the world, Jay Gould refusing interviews, and William O'Brien in jail at Tullamore, Katherine Clemmons, a beautiful young girl with long yellow hair, brought letters to London from Charles A. Dana.

"BUFFALO BILL" CODY, with long hair on his shoulders, admired her greatly, as well he might. Howard Gould married her and she built an imitation of Killarney Castle on Long Island, overlooking the water.

Now she is gone to find out what happened to Victoria, Sullivan, Jay Gould, Buffalo Bill and others gone before.

We are such things as dreams are made of, but it is an interesting dream while it lasts. And perhaps waking up is even more interesting.

DOGS HATE foxes and wolves because they are closely related, and with human beings, it is the same. Chinese bandits have released 14 missionaries, nuns and priests, without ransom. They killed two priests that were Chinese.

India's 300,000,000 inhabitants cannot combine to drive out the British because Hindus and Mohammedans hate the British, but hate each other more than they hate the British. It is a queer hatred, as Montesquieu pointed out long ago in his "Spirit of Laws." Hindus hate Mohammedans because they eat cows, and Mohammedans hate Hindus because they eat pigs.

They murder each other while the British eat both cows and pigs, and rule them all.

THE SHANNON River power plant works admirably in Ireland. The first stage of development provides a peak load of 48,000 kilowatts, an annual output of 153,000,000 units. Foreign experts thought it would take three years to develop consumption for so much power. It is all used now, 15 months after the beginning of operation.

AMERICAN HIGH finance will be amazed to learn that the Irish government developed and owns the power of the Shannon River, is running its power plant successfully, and, needless to say, selling power for much less than it costs in the United States.

Why is it impossible for the United States government to manage any of its own properties, for instance, Muscle Shoals? Is it because our government is too inefficient and dishonest, or because our able corporation minds control the government?

Soon 12 of the 14 will rise, and fly together over the open ocean to Natal, Brazil.

The first flight of a great air squadron marks another important step in aviation. From Natal, the Italians will fly to Rio De Janeiro, and on to Buenos Aires.

Who doubts that the intelligence of man will enable him to do, safely and regularly, what the wild geese have done for more than 1,000,000 years?

AMONG SIGNS of coming prosperity energetic advertising is important. A note from L. Ames Brown, president of the Lord & Thomas and Logan firm, announces the biggest year that the firm has ever had, a gain of ten million dollars over the best previous year, in a total of fifty million. This does not annoy Albert Lasker, recently of the Shipping Board, who used to be an office boy in Lord & Thomas, and now owns most of it.

Mr. Brown says that the real foundation of successful advertising is DAILY NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

If any other firm has done better, in gains, please advise.

HARD TIMES make men think, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, thinks the "five-day week" is necessary to restore equilibrium between labor, supply and demand for laborers.

But he doesn't think the plan could be worked "during an economic crisis, like the present."

It is just dawning on human beings that invention of machinery which lets one man do the work of five or a hundred, should also diminish the amount of work that each man must do.

Why should the age-old system of EAT, SLEEP, WORK AND ALWAYS WORRY last forever?

Racketeers at Odds Over System to Replace Figures In Clearing House Pools

Division among the leaders of the numbers racket is increasing the difficulties in reorganizing the lottery in preparation for the New Year, when the daily figures of the New York Clearing House will no longer be published.

A powerful North Side pool has decided to use the Pittsburgh Clearing House figures, according to well informed sources. A number of other headquarters are inclined to favor the figures of the United States Treasury.

FIGHT ON ZONES

Quarreling over territories has long been a part of the numbers game here, and it is believed that small misunderstandings may flare into an open feud in the confusion around the first of the year, unless a general agreement is reached.

The numbers leaders have been slow in outlining their policies even to trusted lieutenants. There is a tense waiting to see what the other fellow does.

The rolling of dice for the number which has been mentioned as an alternative for the New York Clearing House figures is not generally favored, even by the numbers men. They realize that to reap a harvest anywhere near the size of the one gleaned from the New York numbers, they must capture the public imagination.

DON'T FAVOR DICE

The public at large has not given evidence of great enthusiasm over the rolling of dice in some back room.

Already there have been murmurings of dissatisfaction among the customers when the pay-off was cut down by some of the pools. The heads of the lotteries are seeking to avoid false moves which would kill the last remnant of confidence.

Committee Given Orders To Eliminate Russell, King, Bonner; Brookhart Balks

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—President Hoover himself was responsible for the dismissal of Charles A. Russell, solicitor of the Federal Power Commission, and William V. King, its chief accountant, it was learned today.

With this disclosure came another, that the Senate Interstate Committee was notified the President desired Russell, King and F. E. Bonner, executive secretary, eliminated. The committee received this information before it started hearings on the new commission, it was reported.

BROOKHART DENIAL

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, however, took issue with this assertion, which came from a high authority. Brookhart said the committee, in secret session, only took up the matter of Bonner's dismissal. Bonner has long been a storm center at the Capitol among Senators opposed to alleged friendliness of the power trust within the old power commission.

Other members of the Senate committee, declared the committee knew all three men were to be dismissed even before the five new commissioners appeared to tell of their qualifications.

The power commission revelations came on the heels of the refusal of Senator George W. Norris, veteran Republican insurgent, to head a new independent third party.

NORRIS HAS PLAN

In declining the invitation of Dr. John Dewey, noted political philosopher and educator, to initiate the movement in opposition to both the Republican and Democratic parties, Norris declared he would sponsor a constitutional amendment to abolish the electoral college, thus permitting direct elections of presidents.

At the same time the veteran insurgent leader declared the power trust is preparing to elect a president in 1932 who will be subservient to its interests, no

Show Boat Refused Permit by Clark

James M. Clark, director of the Department of Public Safety, has definitely and finally refused to permit the Show Boat of Capt. J. W. Menke to tie up for a public performance anywhere in the City of Pittsburgh.

Clark holds that the boat is not fireproof and is a menace to the safety of patrons. He refused a permit to land for the reason that the boat does not comply with the state theater act. Menke has been anchored in the channel off Sixth street and Duquesne way in the hope of lowering his gangways on city property and putting on some of the old-time melodramas for local audiences.

HEARING IN NORTH SIDE POLICE COURT BEFORE MAGISTRATE RAY SCHNEIDER FOR MEN ARRESTED AFTER SHOOTING

9 ARRESTED BY RAIDERS FREED

U. S. Agents' Retaliation for Shooting Balked as Only One of 10 Seized Is Held

Another chapter in the feud between federal prohibition agents and North Side's beer runners was written early today when the bootleggers retaliated for a beer seizure by spattering an agent's automobile with revolver and shotgun bullets as it was parked in front of the House Building, Water street.

Following the shooting the agents struck back with a raid on the gang's McClure avenue brewery, and, working side by side with police, raided an alleged liquor den in the same vicinity and arrested 10 men.

Among them, shielded by aliases, were said to be several of North Side's most important racketeers.

The agents' first attempt to make the arrests was met with armed resistance.

9 PRISONERS DISCHARGED

Of the 10 men arrested, nine were discharged at a hearing before Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court because of lack of evidence. The other, who said he was Michael Sweeney, of 3116 McClure avenue, "took the rap" for the liquor seized in the raid, and was held on a liquor charge.

PISTOL EVIDENCE

Appearing against the defendants was A. E. Coleman, of the prohibition department. A large pistol, confiscated in the speakeasy at 3164 McClure avenue, and several lead pellets, dug from the automobile of L. E. Ross, another agent, of West View, were offered as evidence. None of the defendants claimed the gun and all denied they were implicated in the attack on Ross' car.

The trouble originated last night with the seizure of several barrels of beer in Diamond street, North Side. The agents watched the beer leave the McClure avenue brewery. The agents were followed by the bootleggers to International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—The presence of gangrene, following a serious operation for inflammation of an artery, has necessitated amputation of the right leg of Marshal Joseph Joffre, hero of the Marne, it was learned authoritatively by International News Service today.

An official communique issued by his three physicians made no mention of the amputation, but stated that his condition was "alarming."

78 YEARS OLD

At 78 years of age, the white-haired old warrior had a fight on his hands against greater obstacles than he ever encountered on the western front. For with death from grave illness hovering near, the consummate strategy which enabled him to save Paris from the German rush at the Marne in 1914 was to no avail. The only hope was that his constitution, although fragile from

CHICAGO JEWS BAN POULTRY

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The Rabbinate, governing body of Orthodox Jews in Chicago, has declared a ban effective Monday on poultry, and has ordained that no fowl found in Orthodox Jewish markets shall be kosher after that date.

The order was issued in a fight against the Shochtim, authorized killers of poultry under Jewish laws, some of whom, it was charged, have violated the holy laws of the Talmud and have defied the Rabbinate by racketeering, terrorism and other infractions.

The Rabbinate ruled that any shochet who kills poultry after Monday would be forever barred from his profession. Presidents of congregations were asked to co-operate so that no shochet would be asked to kill during the period of the boycott.

Prominent Jewish authorities in Pittsburgh declare that there has been no similar trouble in carrying out the rites of the church here. The trouble was described as a local condition in Chicago, and one not likely to appear in this district.

APPLE SELLER FREE ON BAIL

Benny Ehrlichman, of Aliquippa street, described by police as the city's most prosperous "unemployed" citizen was released under bail at a hearing in Central Police Court today.

Ehrlichman has been the subject of frequent police investigations. Yesterday Lieut. Albert Jones visited his Diamond street stand, arrested Ehrslichman and confiscated 21 cases of apples. Technically, the prisoner is charged with violating a city ordinance, but unofficially he is also charged with underselling and handling "spurious" apples.

Ehrlichman did not have an "unemployed apple seller" permit. He was refused a permit by the Jewish Family Welfare Association, of which he has been a charge for many years.

The association avers Ehrlichman, who is partly blind, is a professional begger and that he refused schooling at the blind institute because, he told them, he could make more money begging. His assistance from the federation averages $1,000 a year, the organization said. They also charged Ehrlichman at one time purchased two houses with the money he obtained by begging. They also aver that he used a soldier's uniform to incite sympathy.

His son, Sammy, 10, told Lieut. Jones that his father's apple sale was at least 10 crates daily. At a legitimate profit this would net the peddler $20 a day.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh plans to cross the continent to Los Angeles again in January, it was learned today.

He will fly a large plane for the installation of a new wing equipped with a landing gear which folds into the wing, thus eliminating much air resistance and adding several miles an hour to the ship's speed.

Lindbergh has a long tour of South America in mind, but has set no definite date for the start. He may not make the trip until summer.

He has declined to say whether he will attempt to establish a new speed record in flying to Los Angeles.

HELD LIKELY TO REFUSE TO RUN

Believed to Be Opposed to Entering Battle to Gain Senate President's Post

In his battle against Augustus F. Daix, Jr., president pro-tempore of the State Senate, Gov.-Elect Gifford Pinchot will probably have to look elsewhere than Allegheny County for a candidate because, unless all political signs fail, Senator W. D. Mansfield, of McKeesport, will not be a candidate.

Senator Mansfield promised to make his position clear in the matter yesterday, but said last night that he will have to confer with others whom he talked with yesterday before making the promised formal statement. It was learned, however, that there was little chance of him being a candidate.

His action is interpreted by those watching the efforts of Pinchot to upset precedent by ousting the incumbent president pro-tempore as a victory for Former State Chairman W. L. Mellon, who quietly but forcibly has been battling Pinchot in the Allegheny County sector.

Pinchot came here last week to line up for his choice of president pro-tem the local delegation of six senators, and primarily to annex the vote of State Senator Frank J. Harris, which would have assured him three votes here, with State Senators James J. Coyne and Mansfield pledged to him.

Harris "came half way" with Pinchot in political parlance by declaring himself for Mansfield, according to politically-minded persons. They say that Mansfield really never was nor intended to be a candidate.

The only other Senator who has been talked of to be Pinchot's choice to beat Daix is Charles H. Ealy, of Somerset. Pinchot is understood not to have mentioned anybody's name in his many conferences here and at Philadelphia, at which he sought to line up his forces.

However, the whole matter will all be over in a week, for the caucus of the Republican organization has been set for the night of Monday, January 5.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that produced the precipitation over this section yesterday and last night is now centered off the Middle Atlantic Coast, lowest barometer, 29.42, at Atlantic City. The precipitation area includes all the Atlantic Coast states and as far west as Middle Tennessee. The fall was moderately heavy over the Middle Atlantic states, but over the more elevated portions it was mostly in the form of snow. The plateau high has increased in intensity, and an offshoot from it moved over to the Gulf states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are frozen at most places. Stage at Pittsburgh is 9.5; Dam No. 4, 9.0; Dam No. 6, 7.4, and Dam No. 12, 3.9.

A SECOND LOOK — By Quin Hall

KLINE ENTERS P. O. FIGHT

Mayor Charles H. Kline has taken a hand in the postoffice controversy, asking that full information on the street traffic arrangements be furnished to the Better Traffic Committee. His request was made to Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury.

The plans are highly important to the city, Mayor Kline informed the Treasury official. Drastic measures may have to be taken to handle the traffic situation at peak hours, Kline said in stressing the importance of the Better Traffic Committee being informed on the subject.

Government officials who rejected the committee's first recommendations pointed to the parking lot on the postoffice site and said that if all that traffic could be handled there would be no difficulty in running trucks into the building. The committee answered that the entrance to the parking lot is on Grant street and corresponds with the ramp entrance which they favor for the building.

GARBAGE BIDS CONSIDERED

Which of two bidders for the removal of the city's garbage and rubbish for 1931 will be successful in receiving the contracts was a matter of conjecture today following opening of bids yesterday by City Controller James P. Kerr and Health Director C. B. Maits.

For the first time in many years there was a competing bidder against the American Reduction Company for the city contract, Dr. Kerr said.

The Modern Service Company, Inc., a new concern, underbid the Allegheny Garbage Company and the American Reduction Company, both under the same management.

A conference was held by Drs. Maits and Kerr late yesterday, to determine the status of the new organization, but no announcement as to when the contract would be awarded, was made.

POLICE PROBE BRADDOCK FIRE

Police today were investigating the cause of a fire which damaged the leather goods store of Sam Nowling, at 906 Braddock avenue, Braddock, late last night. The store occupied the first floor of a three-story brick building, the upper floors of which were used as apartments. Firemen confined the flames to the store. Damage was estimated at $6,000 by firemen.

Firemen today were convinced that the explosion which wrecked houses in 605 and 607 Margaretta street, Braddock, yesterday, was caused by gas and not by a bomb. Flames broke out immediately after the blast, they said, which would not have been the case if a bomb had been exploded.

"Papa" Joffre leaped to the heights of his career in 1914, when he was delegated the staggering task of stemming the German invasion.

As commander-in-chief of the French armies, France looked to him in the most critical hour of its existence to accomplish the impossible. His brilliant fulfillment of the nation's hopes endeared him forever in the hearts of his countrymen and inscribed his name among those of the immortal heroes of the world's military history.

ILLNESS REVEALED

Marshal Joffre's grave illness was finally revealed today after days of persistent efforts on the part of his wife to keep the fact secret in order not to arouse alarm among the population, which still idolizes him as greatly as in the days when he protected Paris from the invaders.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS APPROVED FOR NORTH SIDE

Council Votes Fund; Also Restores Sums Mayor Cut From Planning Bureau

City Council stood on record today as favoring extension of the automatic synchronized traffic lighting system in use in the downtown district, to the business section of the North Side. Council yesterday placed in the budget an item of $25,000 for the lights after representatives of the North Side Board of Trade urged such action.

Lights now in use in the sections are not synchronized and do not operate in conjunction with the downtown system.

ASK NEW BUILDING

Officials of the Board of Trade also advocated a new municipal building to replace the old Allegheny City Hall at Federal and Ohio streets. The present building, they said, is obsolete. Plans submitted to the Board of Trade, it was said, call for an expenditure of $650,000 for a new building.

Widening of several blocks on South Diamond street was suggested as an aid to traffic relief. Council ordered the City Planning Commission to investigate and report.

EAST END APPEAL

The East Liberty Chamber of Commerce asked Council to consider certain projects for the East End.

P. J. Flood, secretary of the organization, proposed widening of Broad street, Highland to Negley avenues; widening of Collins avenue, a new boulevard down Chianti Hollow, from Collins avenue to Washington boulevard; a high bridge and dam over the Allegheny River; a connecting link between Baum boulevard and Shakespeare street, over the railroad at Shady avenue; a connecting link between Penn avenue and Baum boulevard extension, near Collins avenue, and the widening of Penn avenue to Baum boulevard.

Chairman W. Y. English announced budgeting sessions would be resumed at 10 a. m. Monday. Yesterday, however, was the last day for hearing budget proposals from organizations.

MAYOR OVERRIDDEN

Amounts cut from the 1931 estimates for the Bureau of Traffic Planning by Mayor Charles H. Kline were replaced in the appropriations yesterday by the Councilmanic budgeting committee. The funds are for operation and maintenance of various traffic facilities, gas accumulators and educational essay work.

The action followed appearance of officials of the Better Traffic Committee before the budgeting group. Among those who outlined needs and plans of the bureau were Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee; Walter S. Rosenbaum and Edward Snodgrass, Jr., vice chairmen; F. J. Kress, treasurer, and John Rice, traffic consulting engineer.

WANTS POLICE MOVED

Councilman Robert Alderdice took exception to statements by the traffic committee and the bureau that installation of automatic and synchronized traffic lights in the downtown has reduced the number of policemen necessary to enforce motor law regulations.

Alderdice asked:

"Have there been any officers released? Why keep them there if the lights work properly, when there are 300 vacant police beats throughout the residential sections of the city?"

Rice replied:

"As I understand it, many have been relieved. Some officers are necessary to insure the safety of pedestrians."

Alderdice offered a motion to have the police department give Council facts and figures to determine whether officers have been relieved.

MISS HELEN LEE EAMES . . . . 1,000 SAW HER "COME OUT"

matter whether he is a Republican or a Democrat.

HOOVER AND POWER TRUST

Norris declared President Hoover is the Republican choice of the power trust and that Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company is its Democratic candidate. He said:

"We know that Hoover is a friend of the power trust. We know that right now the power trust is doing everything that it can do to nominate a Democrat for president who will be subserviant to its interests. Suppose that happened and suppose that President Hoover is renominated and that the Democrats nominate a man satisfactory to the power interest."

Asked to explain, Norris replied:

"It is well known that emmisaries are already around here busy trying to line up the Democratic party for Owen D. Young."

The insurgent group of the Senate, rallying around the leadership of Norris, will "bore from within" in an effort to reform the Republican party to their liking rather than launch a third party at this time, it was revealed today.

AGAINST THIRD PARTY

Norris' decision against starting a third party now had the endorsement of other insurgents.

"Roosevelt and La Follette failed in their efforts to start a third party," observed Senator Brookhart. "It requires an uprising of the people to form new parties. One leader or a dozen leaders can't do it."

Other insturgents agreed with Norris that "in a practical sense, the suggestion made by Dr. Dewey cannot be followed at this time by the Progressives in and out of the Senate, who believe as I do. "Norris said he did not regard the party as sacred, but only as a bare instrumentality to government." He added:

'The Republican party does not belong to President Hoover. It does not belong to Mr. Lucas. It didn't belong to Presdent Harding, or Sinclair, or Daugherty, or Fall, although at one time they controlled it. The people took away tha control as they will again, but under our system it is a slow process. Now, the party has to run to President Hoover to find out what it stands for on any given subject. That system is wrong. The people should control it."

So the insurgents will sit tight, battling the "Old Guard" and fighting for control of the Republican party. It may be a slightly different story in 1932, but the insurgents are not committing themselves that far ahead.

SOCIETY VIEWS DOHERTY DEBUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A thousand guests braved inclement weather last night to attend the initial bow to society of Miss Helen Lee Eames Doherty, daughter of Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, of New York.

They filled the drawing rooms and ballrooms of the Mayflower Hotel, all of them taken over for the affair, while outside their limousines jammed traffic on one of the city's broadest avenues.

Vice President Curtis, his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, Secretary and Mrs. Hurley, numerous diplomats, Senators and others whose names dot the pages of the social registers of Washington and New York were there.

But gate crashers did not get in. A special detail of police guarded the entrances and unusual care was given to compare the invitations presented with the names on the long guest list.

the House Building, and a few moments later shots from a revolver and a shotgun were emptied into the parked car.

DRYS RAID BREWERY

Resenting the attack, the agents returned to the North Side, and raided the brewery. They returned again on the trail of the gunmen, and in front of the building, at 3164 McClure avenue, they were met with armed force. One of the thugs, Coleman said, removed a sawed-off shotgun from beneath his coat.

The agents decided to flee. They were followed, they said, by a car containing several men. To the North Side police the agents went, and with the aid of Capt. Anthony Block and a squad of police the 10 men were arrested. They gave fictitious names, police averred.

FIND NO CLUE IN $14,000 HOLDUPS

Police Fail to Uncover Trace Of Bandits Who Rob Loan Office and Pawnshop

Police and detectives today had found no trace of the bandits whose loot in holdups yesterday and last night of a building and loan association in Hazelwood, a pawnshop in Wylie avenue and an East Carnegie grocery amounted to almost $14,000.

The meeting of the Hibernian Building and Loan Association in the real estate office of John M. Kelly, 5118 Second avenue, was interrupted by three bandits last night.

ONE CARRIES GUN

One of the trio had a revolver. He ordered J. S. Dudas, the secretary, and his assistant, Joseph McDonald, of Superior avenue, Homestead Park, and Herrman Nanna, of 161 Lincoln place, a member, to hold up their hands.

He then peered into the rear part of the office where James McNamara, of 304 Winston street; James Cavizan, of 4613 Chatsworth street, the directors, and James M. Welsh, of 78 Hazelwood avenue, vice president, were sitting. They, too, were ordered to hold up their hands.

The tallest of the three walked behind the counter and helped himself to more than $1,300 of the association's funds.

REMARKS LOOT SMALL

As he stuffed the cash into his pockets, the robber remarked:

"The till's not so heavy today."

Warning the six men against making an outcry, the bandits backed out of the office and escaped in an automobile.

In the holdup of the pawnshop of Abe Lippard, 623 Wylie avenue, two bandits, one of whom first posed as a customer, obtained diamonds valued at $10,000, and $750 in cash. The robbers forced Lippard to lie on the floor.

Two other bandits stole $1,000 from the pockets of F. L. Hufnagel, a grocer at 717 Idlewood avenue, East Carnegie, and $250 from a cash register in the place.

Yesterday's criminal activity was the first of major importance since the recent holdups of the Manchester Savings Bank and Trust Company and the Perry State Bank, both on the North Side. Loot in the bank robberies amounted more than $55,000.

EXTRADITE BANK SUSPECTS

The stickup of the Perry Bank was declared solved with the arrest of four men, three of whom were said to have confessed parts in the robbery. Extradition proceedings for three alleged members of the gang caught in New York were begun. Their return is expected early next week. They are Edward Pishney and Harry Hoover. A third, Benny Lipkowitz, shot by a New York detective, is in Fordham Hospital.

Emil Grayshock, who, along with Lewis Francis, was arrested in a suburb near Akron, O., admitted participating in the Perry bank robbery, detectives said Francis is being held as an accessory.

MOTORIST ROBBED

Milo Groah, 113 De Soto street, reported to police that shortly before midnight two armed Negroes in an automobile stopped him as he was driving near the Greenfield bridge in Schenley Park, and robbed him of $73.

Accused of the theft of an automobile, Frank Adamski, 19, alias Frank Adams, of 1272 Second avenue, New Kensington, was held today by Aspinwall police. Police charged he stole the car of C. W. Shaw, of New Kensington, yesterday and later crashed into an automobile in Sharpsburg and another at Aspinwall. He was arrested on a street car after he had abandoned the machine, police said.

Legislation Can't Lure Dull Times, Coolidge Says

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 27.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Fear is not only contagious but reaches our representatives. It affects the neighbors and has its reaction on the office holders. That will be the great difficulty with the Congress and with all the state legislatures. Something is the matter with the country and they will all feel an irresistable temptation to try to provide a remedy. That would be fine if they had any such power. But only the people themselves have the power to work out of their difficulties, which they can best do without legislative interference.

Calvin Coolidge

The trouble is that efforts will be made to save a situation by legislation when no legislation can save it. In general we may expect to see many proposals to increase expenditures of public money when high national and higher local taxes have been a great contributing factor to the present situation. What the country needs the courage and confidence that relief from taxes would give, increasing appropriations only add to the discouragement. What a refreshing spectacle it would be if a little band of office holders would announce they were ready to risk defeat by resisting these unsound proposals. The whole country would rally to their support.

86-Mile-an-Hour Joyrider Gives Chicago New Thrill

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A big shiny red eight-cylinder automobile was standing in front of the city hall yesterday at 1:06 p. m. when George B. Warner, an elevated railway guard, off duty, happened along.

George had nothing in particular to do, so he hopped in and stepped on the gas. Out of the loop he roared at a speed estimated by police at 60 miles an hour. Brakes on other cars in the crowded district shrieked to give him room.

Then he bore down a little more on the gas and shot the car to Grant Park at 65. George then took the lake shore, increasing his speed as he went along, finally getting up to 86 miles an hour, police said, missing pedestrians by inches. All the while he kept the auto horn going.

By 6:30 p. m. practically the whole Chicago police force was looking for him, but he was always miles ahead of where he was last reported. Finally, on his fourth stop for gas, the police closed in on him. They said:

"You are wanted for breaking all the traffic laws there are, for stealing that car, for smashing somebody's running board, for being a maniac, and for impersonating the fire department of the City of Chicago. Do you happen to know that you have been burning up the pavement with the personal car of Assistant Fire Marshal Michael Buckley?"

George smiled.

"It's a nice car. If the chief had kept it in better shape I'd have stepped it up to 95."

103-Year-Old Film Actor, Ex-Army Scout, Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—William H. "Billy the Scout" Taylor, 103-year-old veteran of the Indian wars and the Confederate army, and for 25 years one of the film colony's most colorful members, died of old age.

Taylor was born in 1827 in that part of old Mexico which later became Texas, and lived through one of the country's most stirring periods of development.

In 1856 he joined the army and fought wandering Indian tribes on the prairies. With the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in the 78th Confederate Virginia regiment. At the close of the war he again joined the United States Army. He served under Gen. Nelson A. Miles in the campaign against Sitting Bull and was a scout for Gen. Custer. He spent 20 years fighting Indians.

Taylor retired and came to California 34 years ago. He entered motion pictures in 1910, playing in Western two-reelers. Until his one hundred and second birthday he gained a living as a white-haired Indian fighter in the films.

During his last illness, which attendants described as "simply old age," Taylor was cared for by his friends of the motion picture colony. He said he never married and knew of no relatives.

MURDER ANNIVERSARY DRAB DAY FOR IRENE, DAGUE

LIEUT. LESTER J. MAITLAND

PACIFIC FLIER BETROTHED

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, first aviator to fly from California to Hawaii, and Mrs. Kathleen McDermott, of San Antonio, have filed intention to marry.

Maitland and Mrs. McDermott said they had no definite wedding plans. A wedding license has not been issued. Intention to wed was filed Tuesday at Boerne, Tex., near San Antonio, where the Army flier is stationed.

PRIEST VICTIM IN STOCK FRAUD

The Rev. John Hackett, of St. Andrew's Catholic Church, North Side, was one of a group of 20 clergymen who lost a total of about $150,000 through a company promoting a "marvelous" automobile invention, according to a report from the United States District Attorney's office in New York.

Rev. Hackett, at first reported victimized of $2,300, last night is reported to have said he had invested about $500 in the Automotive Royalties Corporation. Clark W. Parker, trustee of the Church of the Strangers in New York, said to have been the leader in the scheme, was indicted with his son and 15 others by a federal grand jury last week.

Dry Agents Raid 5 Stills in Maryland

LEONARDTOWN, Md., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Prohibition agents on the Southern Maryland front have destroyed five stills in the last few days. Four were wrecked Christmas Eve. The fifth, reported yesterday, found in the woods near Valley Lee, about 12 miles from here, had a 300-gallon capacity.

Revolt Sentiment Grows in Venezuela

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Unrest and increasing revolutionary sentiment was reported today in dispatches from Venezuela, where the government was said to be facing a serious situation.

The populace of Caracas and Maracaibo, important seaports, were reported incensed over the government's failure to observe the annual Christmas custom of granting amnesty to political prisoners.

Italian King, Queen Open Opera Season

ROME, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena inaugurated the Roman opera season last night, attending the opening performance of Puccini's "Manon Lescaut." Contrary to the usual royal custom, they arrived for the overture and remained standing while the orchestra played the royal march and the Fascist "Giovinezza," Italy's two national anthems.

Two Held in Man's Death from Liquor

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa. Dec. 27.—One death from moonshine liquor occurred here when Sam Spishock, 45, of Indian Creek, was found dead in a bed at the home of John and Mary Hominsky, in Water street. Chief of Police J. C. Wall arrested the couple when he located a keg of liquor in the rear of the property.

RECALL PAUL SLAYING YEAR AGO

Doomed Couple Still Hoping For Mercy; Blonde Visited By Kin, Glenn Sits Alone

NEW CASTLE, Dec. 27.—Irene Schroeder and Walter Glenn Dague, their last hope to escape the electric chair pinned upon action of the State Board of Pardons, spent the anniversary of the climax to their career of crime in the Lawrence County Jail today.

It was one year ago today that the couple, with Tom Crawford, Irene's brother, sped toward New Castle in a stolen automobile after holding up a store in Butler. When Corp. Brady Paul of the state highway police patrol sought to intercept them, he was fatally wounded by shots from the car.

Today was uneventful, after the celebration of Christmas which brought gifts and relatives and visits to Irene by her precocious little son, Donnie. Irene's sisters, a brother and her father, Joe Crawford, former Benwood (W. Va.) fish peddler, came to see her. The father and brother spent Christmas with her, then returned to West Virginia, taking Donnie with them.

DAGUE SITS ALONE

Dague sat alone in his cell, no gift nor relative coming to cheer him in his reflections back over the year in jail. For Irene there was everything—new dresses from benefactors outside; candy, magazines and Christmas cards by the dozen from all over the country, according to jail attaches.

Dague has not heard from his relatives since the wife he deserted left New Castle with their two children to resume teaching last summer. His father and brothers have neither written nor visited him since the trial.

But Irene shares with him the pleasures she receives. She sends him notes of endearment to cheer him and sings to him in his cell.

Today, they were quieter than usual, jail attaches reported. Someone earlier in the day had reminded them of the anniversary.

MANY SEEK REWARD

Meanwhile Lawrence County commissioners continued to wrestle with the problem of distributing the reward posted for the arrest of the pair. The commissioners are about convinced that it would be easier to pick out who didn't capture them than who did.

Piling ever higher and higher are the claims for the $3,200 reward offered for apprehension of the couple, whose flight across the country ended in the mountains of Maricopa County, Arizona, last January.

Phoenix police, Maricopa County officers, and residents in both Arizona and Pennsylvania have made their bids, which are to be officially reviewed next Jan. 12 at a public hearing.

Vanderbilt Bank Pays 75% Dividend

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 27.—A steady stream of former depositors filed through the First National Bank of Vanderbilt to receive dividend checks paying 75 per cent. The institution closed in July. Approximately $94,000 will be distributed among 2,000 depositors.

IRISH PAINTER AIRS WOES

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—John Keating, the Irish painter, who wears a blue flannel shirt and hates "arty" people, diagnosed, as he prepared to return to Dublin, the troubles of art. He said:

"The trouble with art is that it has to carry on its back a load of museum curators, dealers, critics and cognoscenti. The result is a structure of humbug, cant, and argot that actually has nothing whatsoever to do with art itself."

Keating came here for an exhibition of his works. He has been here three weeks and he said he had found New York as near to the limit of impossibility as could be imagined. And London, he added, has all the disadvantages of New York with none of the advantages. He said sadly:

"I am not kind. I cannot suffer fools gladly."

Rejected by Girl, Youth, 20 Ends Life

WINDBER, Pa., Dec. 27.—Lewis Bobler, 20, died yesterday in Windber Hospital, of a self-inflicted bullet wound in the brain, inflicted Christmas night at the home of a girl with whom he had been keeping company.

Rejection of his proposal of marriage is said to have prompted the youth to take his life.

300,000-Foot Well Struck in Richhill

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 27.—A gas well with an initial daily production of 300,000 feet has been drilled on the W. J. Nelson farm in Richhill Township, Greene County. George B. Drake, of Waynesburg, and other operators own the well. The strike was made in the salt sand at depth of 1,620 feet.

Christmas Traffic All Jammed Up By Michael

EVANSTON, Ill., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Vivian Wisdom went automobile riding Christmas night with Michael Connolly, but the police, in making public the car's log, withheld any comment as to whether they considered it wise. The log was as follows:

Chicago avenue and South boulevard, Evanston—Struck telephone pole. Taken to hospital by Bender who had followed after vainly demanding that Connolly accompany him to a police station.

Evanston Hospital, Friday—Discharged, with injuries.

LOOMIS, NOTED MUSICIAN, DIES

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Harvey Worthington Loomis, composer and music educator, died here. He had composed four comic operas, one grand opera, "The Traitor Mandolin," 58 spirituals and others music.

He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. His father was Charles Battell Loomis, a tenor, and his mother, Mary Worthington, a soprano of some prominence and a founder of the Brooklyn Philharmonic Society.

Loomis' comic operas were "The Maid of Athens," "The Burglar's Bride," "Going Up?" and "The Boy of Baba." His grand opera was brought out at the Astoria January 11, 1898, before the Society of Musical Arts, with Mme. Pilar-Morin in the leading role.

HOLDS WORKERS OPPOSE DOLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in a radio address on unemployment, declared that the "Real American workman asks no favors that smack of charity and abhors the thought of a government dole, under any guise."

As a general rule, he said, employes of his company have been working full time, but in two or three centers where there has not been work for the entire force, employes cheerfully accepted part time in order that no member of the group should be thrown out of work. Some were laid off for inefficiency and others discharged for cause, he said, but in the few cases where men had to be laid off for lack of work or other reasons no fault of their own, such men have received a cash allowance.

"In a co-operative industry, such as this company has become," he said, "One set of partners cannot benefit at the expense of the others in the partnership."

Teagle asserted that the federal government wisely led the way for the states and municipalities through construction work laid out for the future.

Woman, 65, Held In Sale of Liquor

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Catherine Bell, 65, was held under $1,000 bail for grand jury action by U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Supplee on a charge of selling whisky. She was said by a dry agent to have sold him liquor for 10 cents a drink and a

3 Sail in Search For Pigmy Village

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—To search for a pigmy village for the Chicago exposition in 1933, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley and Alice Bradley, their 10-year-old daughter, left today for Africa. They will also go on an elephant hunt.

MOTHER SHOT, SON, 21, HELD

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Alex Swallow, 21, of Olyphant, who shot his mother through the left hip during a quarrel over his attempt to drive the family car while intoxicated, was committed to jail without bail. Mrs. Luboy Swallow, the mother, will recover.

After the shooting Mrs. Swallow is said to have told the youth she was wounded, but when he pointed the pistol at his own head the mother shouted that she was not injured. He desisted, and Mrs. Swallow went to police headquarters, where she reported the shooting. She was taken to a hospital, where the son was arrested when he called to visit his mother.

HOOVER WOULD HONOR HARDING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The White House announced President Hoover would participate in dedicating the Marion, O., memorial to Warren G. Harding if he is invited.

Plans for dedicating the memorial at the home of the late President have been held up for a long period and no date for the ceremony has yet been set.

It was said at the White House, however, that if the President is asked to participate when the plans are completed he will do so.

Harding became President in 1921 and died in 1923. He appointed Mr. Hoover secretary of commerce at the beginning of his term.

MARION, O., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Hoke Donithen, secretary of the Harding Memorial Association, said he had received no word from Washington regarding a White House statement that President Hoover would accept an invitation to take part in the dedication of the Warren G. Harding memorial here. He added that the association had made no new plans for the ceremony.

Huge Distillery Seized, 2 Men Held

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 27.—(INS.)—A 500,000-gallon distillery, believed to be the largest ever seized in New Jersey, was held by authorities today and two men faced prosecution under prohibition laws. The huge plant was located in a former railway car shop. Thousands of copper containers, 10,000 gallons of finished alcohol and 175,000 gallons of mash were seized.

MISS BOOTH SEES PERIL IN DIVORCE

Salvationist Chief Declares Civilization Menaced; Cites Reconciliations by 'Army'

An interview with Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, another of the series in an unusual discussion of divorce issues, is published today. It presents Commander Booth's views, formed after a lifetime spent in social service.

By EVANGELINE BOOTH.

Divorce is deplorable. And never more so than when it is resorted to by persons who have reached an age of sober, mature thought. To me, it seems incredible that such persons should not be able to solve their problems without recourse to the divorce courts.

For all married people must have problems. What a monotonous life it would be if they didn't.

"ARMY" RECONCILES MANY

I have seen hundreds and my associates in the Salvation Army thousands of men and women who came to us, certain that they had reached a point where life together was no longer bearable. How foolish they were. Just the least bit of common sense; a little clearer vision; a trifle better perspective on life, and they would realize that divorce was the last thing in the world they wanted.

I wish all these people who think their lives have been ruined could have been with me on Wednesday morning at Madison Square Garden. Thousands of men, women and children were there. A little food, a garment or two, a toy—that was all that was needed to bring smiles to their faces and restore to them the joy of living.

USES OF POVERTY

Cruel as it is, poverty has its uses. Give these couples who are determined on divorce a touch of poverty. Their differences will disappear into the air.

Don't these people who are so ready to ask for a divorce know they are striking at the very foundation of their whole world? Don't they realize that every blow that is struck against the family, is a blow against the civilization of which they are so proud?

The family life that has been the bone and sinew of every great nation is being assailed these days on every hand. And no greater blows are struck against it than by the divorce laws.

We, of the Salvation Army, believe as do the Catholics on the subject of divorce. It may be that we are even more strict in our interpretation of the obligations of marriage. It is our fixed policy to discourage not only divorce but even separation.

We do not believe in either.

WOMEN MOST DIFFICULT

And if it was only the men with whom we had to deal I believe we would be even more successful than we are, in bringing husbands and wives together when they have started to drift apart. It is the women who are the hardest to reason with. Why? Well, there are many reasons that may be advanced.

For one thing women are proud. Hurt their pride and they have received a mortal wound.

Again, the majority of women marry their man with a possessive thought. He is "their man" and in their minds, he holds much the same place as their children. He needs them; requires mothering. And it is the instinct of the woman that is hurt when she finds that "her man" has started to wander.

NOT PREVENTIVE OR CURE

Divorce laws, like capital punishment, are neither a preventive nor a curative. To divorce does not prevent unhappiness; neither does it cure unhappiness.

What divorce does do is cheapen marriage. It is like the instructions given by the firemen where large assemblages are to gather: "Find the nearest exit. In case of fire, walk, don't run."

Only now, men and women seem to be running toward the divorce exit. They have one eye on it before they go in. Why do they ever enter?

The divorce views of Ben B. Lindsey, former Denver judge and present exponent of companionate marriage, will be presented in an article Sunday.

CONVICT TAKEN AFTER ESCAPE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Kenneth Mathewson, 24, Oswego, who escaped from the Attica prison camp Christmas Eve, was captured here last night. A companion, believed to be Lee Carpenter, 24, another of the four prisoners who fled from the camp, escaped over a fence while a Syracuse patrolman fired unsuccessfully after him.

Mathewson and his companion jumped from a first floor window in South Townsend street after police, acting on a tip, went to the house.

A cordon was thrown about the building as two officers approached the door. As they entered, the two men leaped from the window. Mathewson hid in a small trunk where a patrolman collared him, but his companion sprinted through an alley and escaped.

BANK ROBBERS FOUND IN CAVE

RUSHVILLE, Neb., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Harold "Spike" Domnisse, 28, and Forest Cook, 23, escaped bank robbers, were captured in a cave eight miles south of Chadron by a posse.

The two men had battered their way out of jail at Alliance, Neb., while scores of persons participated in a Christmas program in front of the building.

After less than 19 hours freedom, Domnisse and Cook were back in jail here awaiting transfer to the state penitentiary to begin serving 20-year sentences for robbing the First National Bank of Hay Springs last Sept. 18 of $14,000.

Group to Survey Airport Sites Here

A survey of the Pittsburgh area will be made by a Western Pennsylvania Airport and Drainage Committee appointed yesterday, the American Engineering Council announced. The Council is organizing 100 committees to study airport conditions in all sections of the country. The committee for Western Pennsylvania consists of C. B. Shaffer, of the American Tar Products Company; J. M. Dilley, James Heger, Raymond Marlier, Maurice R. Scharff and W. A. Weldin.

Campus Romance Leads to Balm Suit

MONTICELLO, Ill., Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Miss Rosemary Johnson 21, of Chicago, today had on file in Platt County Circuit Court the declaration of a $20,000 breach of promise suit against William Lodge III of Monticello. Miss Johnson, a former student at the University of Illinois, charges Lodge failed to carry out a romance which began on the university campus.

Lodge, son of a wealthy contractor, was graduated from the university last year.

Lewis' Wife Rests After Operation

BERLIN, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, the former Dorothy Thompson whose husband recently won the Nobel Prize for Literature, was resting easily today at Mommsen Clinic after yesterday's operation for appendicitis.

Her sudden illness has forced her to cancel her proposed trip to Russia, while her husband has given up his intention of visiting England next month.

Contest Seeks Resolution For Welfare of All

What kind of a resolution for New Year's would you write if the welfare of the whole world depended on it?

That's the question that, with thousands churning over the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Resolutions Contest, is being debated today.

The stake is high, $100 to the first prize winner and a number of other prizes. But that is only a part. If a resolution is written which the greatest number of people in the Pittsburgh district could get behind and put into action, how important it would be is inestimable.

The resolution should be written so that its idea is constructive and attainable; it should be humane, ethical and far-seeing. It should be written in 50 words or less.

Three well-known Pittsburghers, civic-minded and active in educational affairs of the district, are serving as the board of judges. They are the Rev. Dr. James F. Carroll, vice president of Duquesne University; Ralph Munn, director of Carnegie Libraries, and Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Public Education.

Already, and the contest has just started, some resolutions are coming through the mails. Send them to the Resolutions Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The contest closes at 5 p. m., December 30. Names of winners and their resolution will be published December 31.

YULE PAGEANTS TO FEATURE SERVICES

Christmas Plays, Cantatas To Be Repeated; Special Sermons Are Announced

Both Christmas and New Years will be celebrated tomorrow in many churches of Pittsburgh and vicinity. Several pageants, given for the first time at Christmas, will be repeated tomorrow.

"A Pageant of the Christmas Mystery," which was produced Christmas Eve in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, under the direction of Boris Glagolin, will be repeated there tomorrow night.

The Christmas service held at the Epiphany Catholic Church on Christmas Day will be repeated in every detail tomorrow at the 11 o'clock mass. It will be a solemn high mass, at which the combined junior and senior choir of 40 voices will sing Ravenello's Mass "Patrem Omnipotem," while the surpliced boy choir of 60 voices will sing Christmas carols in the sanctuary. The Rev. Lawrence A. O'Connell will preside at the service.

PRESENT "MESSIAH"

The choir of the First Presbyterian Church, of Homestead, will tomorrow afternoon present the Christmas numbers of Handel's "Messiah" in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey street. The service will be under the auspices of the East Liberty branch Y. M. C. A. The choir presented this program last Sunday in the Homestead church, under the direction of Frederick A. Welty.

The choir of the First Lutheran Church, Grant street, under the direction of G. Logan McElvany, organist, will tomorrow night present a Christmas cantata, "The Manger Throne," by Maunder. The Rev. Dr. A. J. Holl will speak at the morning service on "Christmas Joy."

The Rev. Dr. John F. Troupe, of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg, will speak tomorrow morning on "New Year, New Man, New World." At the evening service the Christmas pageant, "The Nativity," will be presented by the young people of the church under the direction of Mrs. C. R. Fay.

CANTATA ARRANGED

A cantata, "Bethlehem," will be presented tomorrow night by the quartet of the First Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg. At the morning service the Rev. Dr. George Taylor, Jr., will speak on "The Soul of the Church."

Henry Van Dyke's story, "The Other Wise Man," will be given in pantomime tomorrow night in the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. W. Sproule Boyd will be the narrator. At the morning service Mr. Boyd will speak on "Things Unshakeable."

The Nativity play, "A Mystery of Christmas," arranged by Howard D. McKinney, will be repeated tomorrow night in the Glenshaw Presbyterian Church, under the direction of Frank R. Kennedy.

Dravo, Howard H. McClintic, Howard Heinz, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, W. L. Mellon and David A. Reed, has raised $20,000 for the work, according to an announcement here.

John W. Mace, national field director for the committee, of which Col. Theodore Roosevelt, governor of the Island, is honorary chairman was to sail today for Porto Rico. Mace will consult with Col. Roosevelt, Dr. Joseph Padin, Commissioner of Education for Porto Rico, and other officials of the Island in regard to the needs and problems connected with the program of school lunches which are now being provided. The committee is caring for 40,000 undernourished Porto Rican school children. The administration of this feeding problem is done at the expense of the Insular Government.

AUTHOR URGES WAR ON CRIME

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Organized crime has flung down the gauntlet to American civilization, Arthur B. Reeve, criminologist and writer of detective fiction, said in an address broadcast as part of the crime prevention program of the National Broadcasting Company.

Asserting that the United States faces the greatest crisis since the World War, Reeve said: "What we need most of all is a 10-year program to save civilization."

He emphasized the billions of dollars that crime costs the nation annually in loot and taxes and urged creation of an American crime foundation in which would be centralized the work of the various crime prevention bureaus all over the nation. He suggested an intensive propaganda campaign to awaken the man on the street to the menace of crime.

Civic Club Youths To Hold Reception

MENACHEM USSISHKIN

Mr. Ussishkin, Jewish Nationalist leader, speaker at the Y. M. & W. H. A. tomorrow.

JEWISH LEADER TO BE DINNER GUEST

Mass Meeting Arranged For National Fund Head; Making Tour of U. S.

Menachem Ussishkin, a noted figure in the Jewish National movement, and president of the World Jewish National Fund, now on a tour of the United States, will tomorrow night address a mass meeting in the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue.

Preceding the meeting a dinner will be tendered the guest at the "Y," when he will be publicly greeted.

The Jewish National Fund, in whose interests Ussishkin is visiting the United States, is aiming at the redemption of the land of Palestine for the Jewish people. Land purchased by the Jewish National Fund is the property of the entire people.

In view of the recent political developments in the Zionist movement, Ussishkin's message is expected to attract a large audience.

Miss Emily Lippincott Presents Nieces to Society at Lunch

The final debut event of the season is taking place today, although many entertainments for the buds will fill the remaining days of the old year.

Miss Emily Lippincott is giving a luncheon today in the Lippincott home, Sewickley, to present her nieces Adele and Marianna Lippincott, who are home for the holidays from the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts.

Holiday decorations are being used, with the guests including buds of this year and last and a few friends of Miss Lippincott. Miss Lippincott is wearing black velvet, and Adele and Marianna have chosen afternoon frocks, one of black and silver and the other of tomato red crepe. Both have corsages of gardenias.

Mary Thorburn Maccoun, daughter of the Andrew Ellicott Maccouns, of North Braddock and Baltimore, Md., whose marriage to Richard Rider Jackson, of Baltimore, will take place on Saturday, January 17, has chosen her attendants.

Her sister, Mrs. Ira Manning Parsons, Jr., will be the matron of honor, and the maid of honor will be Harriet Hamilton, of Bronxville, N. Y. The bridesmaids, who number eight, are Mrs. Toland M. Prichard, of New York, sister of the bride-elect; Jean Speller, a cousin; Nancy Allderdice, Mary Marshall, Jane Marshall, all of Pittsburgh; Elizabeth Brawner, of Washington, D. C.; Isabelle Jackson, sister of the bridegroom-elect, and Anne Parker and Hester Tomlin, of Baltimore.

And the wedding is to take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in Grace and St. Peter's Church, Baltimore. The reception will be given in the Alcazar.

Holiday Tea

This afternoon Mrs. Sidney Alexander Chalfant and her daughter, Evaline Chalfant, are giving a Christmas tea in honor of Mrs. Henry C. Fisher and Mrs. Charles Newell Fisher in the Chalfant home on the William Penn highway.

Another Christmas tea is being given this afternoon by Mrs. Joseph B. Fogg and Mrs. John Barclay, Jr., in the Barclay home in Morey place, Greensburg, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Another social affair on today's schedule is a luncheon given by Mrs. Earl Blough, of Howe street, in honor of her daughter, Freni, who is a student at Vassar, and Polly Schoyer, who attends Radcliffe, in Cambridge, Mass.

Tonight there will be a dinner for members of the school set, in honor of Mary Thaw Dilworth, daughter of the John Crossan Dilworths, of Bennington avenue. Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy, of Squirrel Hill avenue, is the hostess.

* * *

Students Honored

Yesterday, too, had its social schedule heavily filled, with luncheons and dinners and teas. Mrs. Frederick B. Hufnagel, of Sewickley, honored her daughter, Ceora, home from Vassar for the holidays, with a luncheon in the Allegheny Country Club. Members of the school set were guests. The club was decked with gay colors and flowers.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. William J. Bell gave a tea in her home in the D'Arlington Apartments, to celebrate the birthday of her daughter, Constance Bell. Decorations were chrysanthemums and pompons and southern smilax.

The guest of honor wore black crepe and flame-colored slippers, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Guests included her classmates at the Winchester School, and Dorothy Potter, of Bartlett street, a former classmate, who is home from Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass.

The Frank J. Kiers gave a dance last evening in their Beechwood boulevard home in honor of their son, Myler Kier, home from the Choate School for the holidays. The guest list was composed of members of the school set.

Last evening the J. Frank Drakes entertained in honor of their debutante daughter, Virginia, at a dinner dance in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. The clubhouse was gayly decorated with pink lilies, irises and roses, with hedges of fir trees.

The guest of honor wore a lovely gown of turquoise blue lace and alternated in carrying her gift bouquets. Constance Drake, a younger sister, wore a frock of coral lace, and Mrs. Drake was stately in gold brocade. Two houseguests of the Drakes, Cherry Ross and Eleanor Righter, were also at the affair, and Cherry chose chartreuse green crepe for her gown, and Eleanor wore green velvet. At midnight the guests were entertained by dancers.

Anna Bovacko, 20, of 527 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, today was recovering at her home from effects of having been overcome by gas from a leaking stove yesterday. She was revived by McKeesport police.

Oriental Garb Displaces Hoop Skirts at Ball Of Southern Club

An entirely new and different atmospheric note was struck last night at the Southern Club's annual charity ball in the Hotel Schenley. No hoop skirts, no pantelettes, no velveted wrists nor colonial wigs. This year's ball was Oriental and, to carry out the idea, the walls were hung with Oriental rugs and tapestries of great beauty and a short sketch in pantomime was given by a group of the young aides assisted by Douglas Morgan. He was the sultan before whom dancers of many nations appeared in an effort to win his favor and attention.

Nancy Metcalfe, daughter of Mrs. Robert F. Metcalfe, chairman of the ball, had the role of the winning aspirant. The costumes were in many cases authentic; all were colorful and against the Oriental settings arranged on a dais at one end of the ballroom, made a lavish spectacle.

The ball, the proceeds of which go for the club's extensive philanthrophic work, was well attended—as it always is—and sartorially it was even more brilliant than in former years. There was some extremely handsome gowning. Mrs. James McFall, the club president, looked lovely in black velvet and gold lace made with a brief train of tulle. Mrs. Metcalfe, too, was in black—chiffon with an elaborate arrangement of sequins, with it she wore a wrist bouquet. Mrs. Arthur B. Lynn was a striking figure in a gown of white chiffon caught at the side with a cluster of scarlet flowers.

Her scarf was of scarlet also. Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh and Mrs. William E. Hart both wore black velvet. Mrs. Elder W. Marshall was in cream velvet and Mrs. Stanley Crawford's gown was of peach satin. Mrs. Adolph Hoffman another member of the committee, wore black lace; Mrs. H. M. Ray, flesh chiffon with a bodice of opalescent beads; Mrs. Kenneth R. Pennie, shell pink satin; Mrs. J. Audley Pierce a changeable blue and silver cloth; Mrs. Samuel Swan Marshall, king's blue satin; Mrs. W. J. Ballantyne, white lace; Mrs. B. N. Upham, eggshell satin; Mrs William O'Lee, white satin and lace; David I. McCahill, black chiffon with rhinestone trimming; Mrs. John Steitz, black chiffon, and Mrs. Frederick Baird, white satin.

Mrs. C. T. Sinclair's gown was of black moire, Mrs. Charles M. White wore pink satin and Mrs. B. R. Almquest peach chiffon velvet. Mrs. Walter S. Black's turquoise blue crepe was embroidered in silver dots. Violet crepe trimmed with steel sequins was worn by Mrs. Eugene Carmichael and Mrs. J. William Rese looked especially attractive in a many-ruffled gown of peach tulle, each ruffle having an edge of silver thread.

Emsworth Meeting

C. J. Allen gave a miniature presentation of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" at the Christmas meeting of the Woman's Civic Club of Emsworth, which was held last night in the Borough Hall. In the cast were R. P. Forsberg, H. K. Dodge, the Rev. and Mrs. Howard Rodgers, Mrs. H. E. Gingrich and Mr. Allen. John Allen was stage manager and Mrs. Samuel Milliken and Miss Anne Rose furnished the vocal and piano music.

Another portion of the program was a beauty talk by Mrs. Mona Thompson, of McCreery's, who demonstrated the care of the skin and gave various other beauty hints. Tea was served. Mrs. A. A. Newell and Mrs. Charles Banker pouring.

Lifetime Medical Attention Planned

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Many folk will be certain of medical attention from the cradle to the grave if recommendations of an investigating committee are adopted. The educational authorities would have the care of the health of children from birth to the age of 16; then they would come under the national health insurance society and finally under the old age pensions board.

Monaca Physician Injured in Crash

ROCHESTER, Pa., Dec. 27.—Dr. J. J Allen, Monaca physician, is in Rochester Hospital with a probable fractured skull and other injuries sustained this morning when his automobile collided with a truck driven by William Downing, 910 Baker street, Pittsburgh, along the Monaca-Aliquippa highway. The truck was owned by the Moore-Glesher Company, Pittsburgh.

CREPE DE CHINE PROVES POPULAR FOR RESORT WEAR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—Last season crepe de chine sniffed the night air and found it good. And so this season it is making all kinds of nocturnal excursions, ones that take it into the smartest restaurants and resorts. It is certainly interesting to note the come-back staged by this reliable material that found itself relegated to the background for so long by the rush of newer and more novel materials that competed for public favor. Well, many of these novelties have had their hour and they are merely a name or a vague memory and crepe de chine has come back stronger than ever and is to be found wherever smart women assemble. The weave used now is of a heavy richness that gives the material an excellent "hang" and allows of deft manipulation and treatment. It is sometimes interesting to note how very ancient some of the latest novelties really are. For houses here are showing evening frocks of crepe de chine as something new.

THE TAILORED SUIT, while not quite hewing to its strictly tailored and classic lines, still retains much of its trigness even if it does permit itself a little latitude. It is soft and feminine enough and is decorative without being too dressy, thus permitting a variety of uses. The model depicted here is a creation by Mirande and is unusually smart and pleasing. It is of fine brown cloth trimmed with brown astrakan. The three-quarter coat is belted and the skirt is a wrap-over model. Diagonal bands, appliqued, form a discreet trimming on sleeve, coat and skirt, which harmonizes with the general scheme whilst supplying subdued decoration.

* * *

JUST TO GIVE YOU an idea of how crepe de chine is used here we have sent on a sketch of a very dignified evening frock developed in this medium. Apart from the material used the square lines of the decolletage are extremely interesting. This line is repeated in the square tops of the two godets set in at the back. These have a decided flare at the lower edge. The skirt all aroun d, in fact, has a flaring circular movement. The bodice is snug-fitting.

Just the Old Holiday Spirit

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

can't be using them all at the same time.

Farmers' wives are waiting for that Congressional money so they can put those bonnets back on the scarecrows.

An artichoke must think it's a Christmas present because it certainly puts a lot of outside wrappers on itself.

But it's all fancy paper and excelsior.

But it's a nice present and we should get to it around April.

Our city has just let out six snow-cleaning contracts to remove the string alone.

But it's awfully exciting opening a present. You yank on the string until the bundle is a different shape.

Then you grab a pair of scissors big enough to cut Niagara Falls up into Turkish baths.

There's another big "Ah" on the second wrapper. On the third roll of parchment you are sure it is a gag.

But the family is still around hollering "Ah" for no reason except they must be paper fiends.

The community chorus of postponed expectancy continues. By this time you are in a Saragossa Sea of crinkly tissues.

The 'phone rings. You answer it and a voice says "Ah."

You ain't sure whether you are talking to an old friend or a new bundle.

Finally you get all the paper off. And what do you think you have got? A muzzle for your dog that ran away yesterday and didn't come back. Dogs have a sixth sense that enables them to see through paper.

But it's the spirit in which the present was given that makes it so happy. And it's the spirit in which it will be exchanged that will make it even happier.

REVIEWS OF NEW TALKIES; HOLLYWOOD, GOTHAM EVENTS

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Plarr

Dr. Gustave Hermann, who was once a Pittsburgh bank teller and is now a physician in Hamilton, O., came back to town for the holidays to visit newsboy relatives.

William Plarr

The good doctor hadn't planned to practice medicine during his vacation, but his granddaughter, Miss Lois Tabbert, complained to him that her Christmas doll needed an immediate operation for the removal of tonsils. Well, the doctor disappeared into a temporary "operating room" with a doll, fixed up two meat balls to represent the removed tonsils and returned the convalescing doll to Lois.

"My goodness!" exclaimed Lois, who has two of 'em, "you've operated on the wrong doll."

A tragedy of another sort occurred in a local speakeasy a day or two before Christmas.

At the entrance are two buzzers and a doorman. When he presses one buzzer, which rings in the speakeasy proper, that's the signal to the bartender that customers who are okay are coming in.

But the other buzzer means that the prohibition agents have arrived and the liquor should be destroyed immediately.

The man who runs the place pressed the wrong button—and before he could rush into the bar to correct his error, eight pints of Christmas whisky had been poured away.

Short story: Charlie Bollinger, Eddie Gildea and Bob McKee are firemen at No. 8 Engine Company. Their day's work done, they pushed Bollinger's aged automobile down a grade until the motor started, hopped in and started home.

In Stanton avenue, the engine caught fire and the firemen rushed a hurry call, not to No. 8 Engine Company, but to No. 36.

The No. 36 captain and crew put out the fire. Bollinger sold the captain the flivver for $2. The three firemen walked home.

When Sinclair Lewis was in Pittsburgh a year or so ago, he met quite a few of us natives, all of whom should be interested in this piece about the Nobel prize winner written by J. Brooks Atkinson, of the New York Times:

"In his jeremiad before the Swedish Academy the other day, Sinclair Lewis laid about him so impulsively and spoke on so many different sides that it is difficult to decide just what he had in mind. It looks as though he had come to praise Caesar, not to bury him. Much of what he had to say, however, was sentimental nonsense. When he declared that a novel could not be popular unless it asserted that 'all American men are still handsome, rich and honest' and abide by the letter of the American credo, the incurable romanticism of the Lewis temperament was in the saddle. If Mr. Lewis ever stops talking long enough to balance his bank book he must know that honoring the American credo in the breach is quite as profitable as honoring it in the observance. There is mazuma to be made in kicking over the traces."

Boy May Lose Eye Injured by Airgun

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 27.—Melvin Evans, 10, may lose his right eye as the result of being struck by a shot from an airgun, which he received as a Christmas gift.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Kin Hubbard is dead. To us folks that attempt to write a little humor his death is just like Edison's would be to the world of invention. No man in our generation was in a mile of him, and I am so glad that I didn't wait for him to go to send flowers. I have said it from the stage and in print for years. My room [illegible] won't be same but Kin sitting in there. I loved his work and I loved him. Just think, just two lines a day, yet he expressed more original philosophy in 'em than all the rest of the paper combined. What a kick Twain and all that old gang will get out of Kin.

Yours, WILL.

Marion Shiller Is First Brunet Studio Signs Up in Three Years

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Parmet Service.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.

Another reason why screen newcomers shouldn't worry over temporary set-backs is the case of Marion Schilling.

When the actress first came to Hollywood she was put under a term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. As is so often the case, she never did anything of importance, and was released.

Then Paramount signed her to play opposite William Powell in "Shadow of the Law." Here again, she served out a six-months' contract. Some time ago, Pathe engaged her to play in one of the episodes of "Beyond Victory," the war-film that now is being partially re-made.

Marion Shilling.

Finally, Marion made a hit. As a result, she once more has a term contract, and Pathe is enthusiastic over her. How much so is revealed in the fact that she is the first actress to get a Pathe contract in a year. Moreover, she is the first brunet to be signed in three years.

FRIENDLY WARNING

BY THE LAW OF PERCENTAGE

El Brendel is to play a dual role in "Mr. Lemon of Orange"—one a gangster in a derby hat, and the other a Swedish janitor.

A WAITING GAME

Heart-breaking suspense awaits the young players who are given trial contracts by the studios. Fox has five girls and boys who have been drawing salary six months, and haven't done a thing.

George Birkel and William Langley already have finished off their terms and have gone. Jean Castle, seven months under contract, is to work for the first time in the El Brendel film. Nancy Kelly, a pretty dancer, still awaits her first assignment.

IN DEMAND NOW

Paul Kavanaugh, the English leading man, had a similar experience. Only the break has come for him.

Ruth Chatterton.

He plays in Ruth Chatterton's current picture, and when this job is done, he goes over to Pathe to take one of the two masculine leads opposite Constance Bennett in "Lost Love."

This is the story that Ernest Pascal came across the country to write. Paul Stein will direct.

Four Held in Theft Of Museum Relics

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 27.—Three youths and a man are being held by police as the climax of a three months' investigation of the theft of several valuable relics from the Greene County Historical Society Museum. They are Hershel Lippencott, 17; Francis Adamson, 20; Leslie Ross, 22, and Bert Craft, 48.

Adamson and Lippencott are said to have confessed to the thefts, while Craft and Ross are being held on charge of receiving stolen goods. Antique pistols and other relics were recovered.

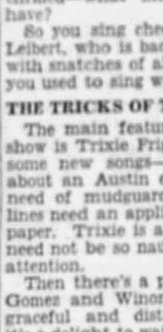
MARY TURNER'S WOES "WITHIN THE LAW" NOW A PICTURE

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Bayard Veiller, who as dramatist makes a specialty of bringing attractive young ladies before the bar of justice, especially if their name is Mary, gave Joan Crawford a heavy emotional role at the Penn Theater yesterday, when his old thriller, "Within the Law," went on the screen under the new title "Paid"—whatever that has to do with the story.



George Seibel

After you have seen this picture you wonder whether the police can be quite that bad, and criminals quite that good.

Mary Turner is sent to jail—innocent, of course—and when she gets out she decides to be a crook, but "within the law," like the big crooks.

She has a hard time of it with detectives, chiefs of police and district attorneys—but Joan Crawford knows how to handle such gentlemen.

STRETCH YOUR IMAGINATION

Joan, or Mary, easily marries the son of the rich man who sent her to prison, and just as easily gets involved in a murder at midnight, for which she and her husband are held.

Very few people have any principles except the crooks, and the supply of brains is even more restricted. But Robert Armstrong looks handsome, and Marie Prevost is very amusing. And you are thrilled—what more would you have?

So you sing cheerily with Dick Leibert, who is back at the organ with snatches of all the old songs you used to sing with him.

THE TRICKS OF TRIXIE

The main feature of the stage show is Trixie Friganza, who has some new songs—one of which, about an Austin car, is sadly in need of mudguards. The rough lines need an application of sandpaper. Trixie is a nice child and need not be so naughty to attract attention.

Then there's a pair of dancers, Gomez and Winona, who are so graceful and distinguished that it's a delight to watch them.

The same may be said of the Chester Hale damsels, while Ted Claire's "Mammy" song made all mouths water for a slice of his birthday cake.

CHARGE DEFICIT, SUE EX-SHERIFF

BECKLEY, W. Va., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Prosecuting Attorney W. H. McGinnis, of Raleigh County, filed suit in Circuit Court for $50,000 against Isaiah Kidd, former sheriff, and the United States Fidelity and Bonding Company, which had bonded Kidd.

The suit was the result of an announcement some time ago from the state tax commissioner's office which reported a shortage of $59,180 in the accounts of the former sheriff, who left office two years ago. The suit was for $50,000, McGinnis explained, since that was the sum of McGinnis' bond with the company.

In a statement made after the report of the audit of his accounts, Kidd said he had made a settlement with the county on the basis of an audit made before he left office, and knew nothing of any shortage.

Couple Overcome By Fumes in Auto

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 27.—Overcome with carbon monoxide gas, William Myers, 46, Mt. Pleasant, and Miss Sarah Mathias, 28, Pittsburgh, were found unconscious in the former's auto on the highway near Youngwood.

Man Dies on Way To Leper Colony

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 27.—En route to the leper colony at Carville, La., after being confined to the Blair County Hospital, John Kalama, 35, died on the train. Burial will be at the colony. He is survived by his wife and one child. Kalama was born in Hawaii and resided in Altoona for 10 years.

Pittsburgh Driver On Bond in Fatality

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Dec. 27. — Waslo J. Sharp, 1319 Reedsdale street, Pittsburgh, furnished bond of $2,000 for his appearance at an inquest into the death of Michael Kapela, 54, Ambridge. Kapela was killed, police reported, when run down by a truck driven by Sharp.

In Mystery

NOTES ABOUT STAGE DRAMAS NEXT WEEK

The attraction in the Alvin New Year's week will be a dramatization of Vina Delmar's novel "Bad Girl."

Antoinette Perry and Brock Pemberton, the producer, have staged "Made in Hollywood," the new comedy which the latter is bringing to the Nixon next week. "Strictly Dishonorable" was another play staged by them.

Lenita Lane, young leading woman, will head the George Sharp players in the Pitt beginning with "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" next week. Her first professional appearance was with the Thurston Hall Players in Pittsburgh.

LOS ANGELES TO JOIN FLEET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The Los Angeles is scheduled to fly to Panama on the first clear day after February 10.

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, decided to use the dirigible for the first time in its new capacity as a military weapon. The Los Angeles will be used as a scouting and reconnoiter ship during the fleet concentration in Panama waters, February 12 to March 24.

Under agreement with Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, the United States, on receiving the ship from Germany in 1924, was not permitted to use the ship for military purposes, but permission to make such use of it was obtained recently.

David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary for aeronautics, said the Los Angeles would not be equipped with bombs or armor, but would be used for scouting work.

The Panama flight will be the second the Los Angeles has made to the Central American country. The first visit was made in February, 1928.

Bullet Victim Admits Being Hired Killer

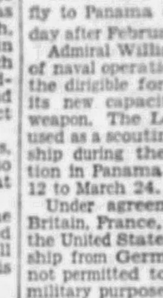
BRADFORD, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Sam Nicoletti, 26, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was quoted by police as confessing in a deathbed statement that he was hired to come here to kill Al Ritchie, assistant county detective, for $500, died in a hospital of a bullet wound which officers said was inflicted by John Santore, 32, of Bradford.

Santore, who according to police, was named by Nicoletti as the man who hired him, was arrested.

MUSIC

Cornell Musical Clubs
Carnegie Music Hall

The Cornell Club of Western Pennsylvania sponsored the concert of the Cornell University musical clubs in Carnegie Music Hall last night. A jolly holiday crowd attended the concert and gave the boys much encouragement during the evening.



J. Fred Lissfelt

The program was dignified by the names of Wagner and Grieg but most of the music was light and quite entertaining. Throughout the playing and singing there was excellent tone quality and good sense of ensemble, so that we believe, with more encouragement in the direction of greater musical works, the Cornell Singing Club could reach enviable heights. Their diction, too, is notable, an essential feature where comedy is in question.

Cass Ward Whitney, a local alumnus, sang a fine solo early in the program and Bruce Boyce displayed an unusually musical baritone with the club and in a solo, Sir Frederic Cowen's The Border Ballad.

To Florrie, Who Won't Let Me See Her Any More

No person I to drown my woe in gin or rye or
The other sundry potions alcoholic;
Such things belonged exclusively to evenings prior.
I'm really, absolutely apostolic.

They say the cinema's the thing in times as these are,
They recommend the the Marxes and Jack Oakie—
To me, I'm sure, they'd be as funny as J. Caesar
Or scanning verse for iamb and the trochee.

Good literature is likewise praised as consolation,
But moody I must get along without it.
I know, my dear, just one route to complete salvation;
Do let me see you, and we'll chat about it.

It Could Happen!

The favorite daughter of a movie magnate recently married a handsome department store floorwalker. Following the honeymoon the floorwalker was installed as the casting director of his paw-in-law's studios.

The first day an actor ankled in and applied for a job. He said his name was John Gilbert.

"Whaju ever do before?" asked the floorwalker.

"Never mind," almost wept Gilbert. "My name is Rudy Valentino and I've been dead four years!"

Gag

One wag states there have been so many runs on local banks that he has been going around wearing sneakers and running trunks!

Izzy Elinsons

Prohibition was declared void, but a void to the drys isn't sufficient . . . And now there's the judge who is accused of accepting a bribe to fix the case of a judge who was accused of accepting a bribe to fix a case.

Haw!

A man ankled into one of the cheaper Times Square restaurants the other evening and ordered some fish. In due time the meal was set before him, and he startled the nearby diners by picking up the dish and sniffing at it. He did this several times and finally the manager of the place went over to the table and asked if there was anything wrong with the food.

"Well," well'd the offender, who was a bit of a critic himself, "it's this way. My brother was a sailor and drowned at sea some time ago. I was just asking this fish if he knew anything about him. But he couldn't help me. Poor thing, he has been out of the water a year, himself!",

There, Now!

The ailing Harry Reichenbach is not so ill that he cannot keep poking his own profession.

He observes that a press agent is nothing but a billposter with a superiority complex, and a movie press agent is only an accent-remover.

Heheheh

Sid Marion, "The German Comic," played a small time circuit which featured 10 shows a day. Upon his return to the Friars Club he groaned:

Trap

The newest scheme to fool and trap liquor law violators, especially in the gay places, is being used by prohibition "master minds."

Now and then you may read in the papers that John Doe, federal agent, has been dropped by the government for this or that reason. Several weeks later the "dropped" agent ankles into a night club or speakeasy, displays the newspaper clipping and hopes the management has forgiven him for any trouble he may have caused, etc. He proceeds to pan prohibition and the government, and then wonders if he can get a drink. But the gag isn't working.

Since La Guinan was the victim of revengers (who used her to trap nearly every other place on Broadway) night club attaches are not even trusting their mothers.

Observation

Gag

Fred Girton said he had the horrors while motoring from New York down to Miami. Every 10 miles, it appears, he heard loud reports and stopped his car to inspect his tires.

"But," continued Girton, "every time I thought I had a blowout, it was nothing of the sort."

"Then what were all those loud reports?" I asked.

Character

Mme. Frances, who made millions in New York gowning fashionable women and who is rated as heaviest plunger among femmes in Wall Strasse, has one of the most extravagant homes in Palm Beach. But with all her coin, she can't get the trees in her numerous gardens to grow oranges. Instead, she has oranges tied to the trees with string.

Mme. Frances, it appears, was most fortunate all year—getting richer via a certain tobacco company's stock. Which is why no person may smoke anything in her home but the brand of ciggie that that company manufacturers.

EXTRA-SIZED SHADOWS NUMEROUS IN FILM IN ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Mystery is casting enlarged shadows in the Aldine. The event is the presentation of the second Realife production. "The Bat Whispers." It is a talk screen adaptation of the old stage play, "The Bat."

The film has a killer about, a fortune hid in a big house and a storm. It has comedy in the person of a servant lady who shrieks at things real and imaginary. It has romance in the presence of a little heroine and a young bank clerk.

Chester Morris, the movies' best gunman, is prominent in the cast. He portrays a counterfeit detective. Other players include Una Merkel, Gustav von Seffertitz, William Bakewell, Spencer Charters, Richard Tucker, Maude Eburne and Grayce Hampton.

As in the stage play, the thrills and chills are there. The photography and lighting effects help to create the proper illusion. And, naturally, a big shadow is much more forboding than a small one. So the extra-sized screen, which goes with and is about the only new virtue Realife offers, is an asset.

NURSE GRANTED DIVORCE

Mrs. Anna Reed Saxton, a nurse, of 5716 Forbes street, has been granted a divorce by Judge A. B. Reid from John W. Saxton, now residing in a downtown hotel.

Her husband left her at 4 o'clock one morning, Mrs. Saxton had testified, when she remonstrated against him coming home at that hour from a gambling game, and told him he must quit that kind of life. He replied that it suited him, she said, packed up his clothes, and left. They were married May 6, 1916, in Altoona, and were living in Glen Osborne at the time of the separation, October 21, 1928.

MOVIES' BIG GRIN MAN IS UP IN THE AIR IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Going Wild," a movie farce that puts the big grin and antic man, Joe E. Brown, up in the air, is the new film at the Stanley. The picture really isn't so wild. It is tamer than some of Mr. Brown's other vehicles. But his mere presence is enough to insure the laughs.

The film story doesn't arouse a lot of cheers. It is a case of mistaken identity again. Brown, as a newspaper reporter out of a job, is thrown off a train in the midst of a reception committee awaiting the arrival of a famous aviator-novelist. Then, by a twist of fate and a couple of twists of script, he finds himself being taken for the air celebrity.

AIRPLANE CHAUFFEUR

Graciously he accepts the plaudits of the populace. It's only when he discovers he's expected to play chauffeur to an airplane that he ceases to have a good time. But like the fellow who was forced to ride a horse in "The Hottentot," Joe gets by and gets the girl in a parachuting fadeout.

Supporting players include Laura Lee, Walter Pidgeon, Ona Munson, Lawrence Gray and Arthur Hoyt.

SHOW THE SEASON

"Hello, 1931" is Ed Lowry's new offering on the stage. It is a good show. Jack Powell, a wizard with the drumsticks, gives a keen exhibition. Fred Byron comes out and dances like no one else dances and wins that "great big hand." Earl La Vere starts more jokes than he finishes. He is a real funny fellow. Then there is a trained seal that isn't a novice. It furnishes its own applause. A midget revue and a song by Mr. Lowry also are featured.

David Broudy and Bernie Armstrong combine in an overture salute to the passing year. It is an entertaining arrangement of song hits of 1930.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

The Unwed Mother Faces a Hard Task in Life

Can a girl with a nameless baby make good?

Or must she loose the clasp of its little hands, give it up to strangers, and go out, alone with her hungry heart, to fight her way in the world?

That was the question Heart-Broken Mary put up to this department.

"You can't stay here with that brat!" her family shouted at her. "Either give it up, or get out and stay out! You've disgraced us enough. Of course if you'll give it up—"

"What'll I do, Sally?" Mary cried in anguish. "Can a girl alone take care of a baby? I'm willing to work. And I just can't give it away! It almost kills me to think of it!"

Same Experience

"You can keep it and take care of it!" answers Marta, out of the knowledge and experience of her own bitter struggle.

Here's her letter. And if it doesn't make some sanctimonious snooters feel like thirty cents, I'll miss my guess!

"Dear Sally:

"I just read heartbroken Mary's letter, and there are tears in my eyes. I know just how terrible her predicament is, and just how bitterly her heart is torn.

"How do I know? I know because she and I seem to have gotten the same bumps in life. I am young yet—only 24. But I have a darling little 2-year-old girl.

"I won't go into how I got into this mess. That part isn't important now. But I will say that I have gone through just the same thing that Mary is up against.

A Hard Fight

"I was turned out by my 'loving' family because I wouldn't give my baby up. And my 'dear' friends all turned the cold shoulder on me. But I set my teeth, and said they weren't going to make me give in. Make me give up my baby that I loved more than anything else in the world? Never! And I didn't! I'd show them! I'd keep it, and take care of it in spite of them all. And I have.

"I was too heart broken and blue. But this is the way I figured it out—

"1. I'd found out where I really stood with my family and friends.

"2. I had something of my very own, with no ties or tags on it . . . and something worth while that would keep my feet on the ground and my head up. And I figured that with a responsibility like that, I just couldn't go wrong.

"So I went to another town for a few months. Then I came back, put my baby in a good home to be looked after, and went to work.

"I certainly found some battles, but with something like that to work and fight for, the battles just made me set my teeth harder. I had to live down a lot of catty talk. But I did it. And in spite of everything, I really began, after a while, to have some good times, and to find some friends who were really worth while and had faith in me. And! I found that life was much more interesting than it had ever been before, with something real to work for.

"I know just how Mary feels when her dear little baby reaches out to touch her. How often I have felt that way! And how it thrills me! She's worth everything she's cost me.

"Tell Mary not to give up . . . not to let anyone force her to cheat herself out of the joy that keeping her baby, in spite of trouble and smeanness, will bring her.

Must Carry On

"And she'll find friends, just as I did. The people who know the truth, and stick by you and believe in you, are the only ones to bother with. They will be your friends, always. Don't worry or think about the others. She'll make friends, and they'll be worthwhile ones.

"Fight, Mary! Fight to keep your baby! You can do it, if you have energy and grit. So let no one change your mind. Babies should be loved for themselves, and not be blamed for something they had no hand in . . . their own birth.

"So don't let it go, no matter how hard the road seems. Keep your head up. Work—and smile. Think happy thoughts. That helps, lots. Fight and you'll win!

"MARTA."

That's a fine, brave letter, Marta. That little daughter is going to be proud of you some day, and thank God for a mother who'd put up such a fight!

You're the Real Stuff, kid. More power to you!

A Good Mother Is Life's Greatest Blessing, Fay King's Tribute to Hers

By FAY KING

It pleases me sometimes to remember back to the days when I was a little girl, and learned to draw pictures from my mother who had a natural talent for sketching.

The many happy hours we sat together with pencils and paper, when childish illness had left me sickly and not strong enough to play with more robust children.

If it had not been for my mother's faith, and praise and encouragement of those first feeble little scribblings I made, I never should have taken up the career of a writer and cartoonist.

How often I think of and am grateful for all I owe to her. A good mother is life's greatest blessing. And mine is one of the sweetest and best.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Relieved at Noel's Quick Acceptance of Plan

Noel did not keep Katherine waiting a single second as she asked him what his reaction would be to the news she was waiting to tell him.

"I am through acting like a baby," he said, and I rejoiced at the strength and determination in his voice. "I told Mrs. Graham that last night."

"She'll be glad to hear it again," Katherine said. "Come in, Madge, and tell Noel what you want him to do, and why. I'll give you one minute to do it in."

"It's only this, Noel," I said. "Your father asked us tonight when you were coming into the city, saying he wished to see you."

The boy's face paled, and I saw his fingers clinch, but he only asked quietly:

"Is he here?"

"Not yet," I answered, "but he will be in a few minutes. That is why we are here—to see that he does not see you until you are ready to talk to him. I will tell you the rest in Mr. Underwood's car, which is waiting back of the barn. Get dressed as quickly as possible. Lace your shoes and put on your tie in the car. Your father telephoned just now from Southampton. It won't take him very long to get here, so hurry."

"Call me if you need any help," Katherine said as we went out of the door. "Luckily you packed last night and your bags are downstairs at the door, Madge, suppose you tell Dicky to put them in the car, Noel, if you have any last things just wrap them in a spare towel. I'll have some paper ready."

We heard him spring out of bed as we closed the door, and Katherine and I gave each other a relieved smile.

"Thanks be to Allah!" she intoned. "I expected all sorts of ructions. Whatever did you say to him last night over the telephone? It sure put cement into his spine."

"Plenty," I returned laconically. In truth, I felt just a bit let down. I had keyed myself up for a psychic combat with the nervous young violinist, and I found that I had nothing at all to do. I reminded myself disconsolately that I might as well have stayed in the city and secured the night's sleep that I so sorely needed.

"Better see your father," Katherine said, guessing my desire. Then beat it to the back door. We want to give the appearance of a household rudely awakened from peaceful slumber when Noel's father drives up. I didn't tell Noel to switch off the lights, for I think he'll be dressed before his old dad can possibly get here. Now I'll answer all your unasked questions. Junior is perfectly well and behaving beautifully. So are Dicky's nephews. Your father and your mother-in-law couldn't be in better health if they were entries in a better old folks' contest. Everything is going swimmingly. And praise be Mother Graham hasn't wakened through all this telephoning. Is there anything else?"

I laughed softly. "No question," I said, "but a solemn adjuration. The minute we are clear and you have the opportunity—"

"Telephone Lil and give her the low-down," Katherine said merrily.

I turned to see my father in a bathrobe and slippers coming down the hall behind Dicky. He put out his arms and I went into his warm embrace. Then he held me off and looked at me.

"Richard wants me we can't waste many seconds," he said, "but I couldn't let you go back without a kiss. Now run along, and I'll go back to my room, so when Mr. Veritzen's man rings the doorbell I can play the role of a gentleman disturbed, switching on the lights in my stately progress from my chamber to the lower hall. As I understand it I am to add my weight of authority to Katherine's refusal to let anyone disturb Noel tonight. Then if his father returns early in the morning, before the first train, I am to say that Noel has changed his mind and gone by motor, starting very early. And I am to let him infer that he secured a car from this section and went in of his own volition."

"That is it exactly," Dicky said, and I saw him give a surreptitious glance at his watch. But he was not adroit enough to deceive my father.

"I won't keep you another second," he said. "Goodby, darling, and good luck. Goodby, Richard."

He shook hands with Dicky and kissed me, then went back to his bedroom, taking with him all the fears which had remained to me as to the outcome of our trip. Philip Veritzen would gain no inkling of our enterprise while my father was dealing with him.

I told Dicky what Katherine had said about Noel's bags and we rapidly descended the stairs to the back door, where Dicky gathered up the luggage in bellboy fashion and slipped quietly out into the yard.

"I'll cut back as soon as I've put 'em in the car," he said. "Noel ought to be down by that time."

Noel was down by the time he came back, but even as I cautiously swung open the door we saw the lights of a big car coming down the road.

"Your dad, Noel, for a cent," Dicky whispered. "Madge, you and he beat it quick before they turn in. I'll stay here and scout around a bit. Tell old Harry if he hears our old signal to beat it down the wood road and turn in at our old swimming beach. I'll meet you all there as soon as I can get away unless I can join you here without any trouble."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Formal Evening Costume

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Before I do anything else, I want to tell you that I have great confidence in your advice on all etiquette problems. Although my difficulty is not one of table or social etiquette, but rather of dress, I am sure, nevertheless, you can and will help me.

I am sixteen years of age and a senior in high school. I have just received a "bid" to a formal dance to be given by our cadets, and these are my problems:

1. With the boys in uniform, it means formal attire for the girls, does it not?

2. Will it be appropriate for me to wear a nile green satin gown?

3. I have linen slippers, tinted to match the gown. Shall I wear these, or would moire be more appropriate?

4. What kind of a corsage do you suggest? Tea roses or lilies of the valley?

5. If the nile green is not correct (although I do hope it is), will black georgette do? M.

1. Yes.

2. Yes, if this is a formal dress it would be just the thing to wear.

3. Moire slippers would be more appropriate.

4. I suggest that you wear a corsage of, say, three or four gardenias. These are unusually attractive with evening dress, and are especially effective and lovely, I think, with green satin. The sheen of the gardenias harmonizes beautifully with the sheen of the satin. Wouldn't you, perhaps, since this is a dance, like to wear them on your shoulder? This is the most convenient way to wear flowers to a dance. The fragrance of gardenias, too, is of an "evening-y" kind.

5. The nile green frock would be better, I think, and more appropriate for the dance than black georgette would be.

A Serious Social Error

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct for the groom to buy the bride's dress, veil and shoes, if the bride's parents are well able to do so?

2. Does the best man furnish the bouquet for the bridesmaid, or does the groom?

3. Is it proper to have three best men at an informal wedding? ERNEST.

1. Under no circumstances is it correct for the groom to buy the wedding attire of the bride. What the bride wears at her wedding depends entirely on what her family can afford to buy for her, or what she can afford to buy for herself. And her wedding plans should be adapted to this.

2. Usually the family of the bride provides the flowers for the bridal attendants. And especially is this easy now, when the flowers are part of the definite plans for the color ensemble of the attendants' costumes. These bouquets are sent, by the bride's family, to the home of the bride, where they are assigned to the attendants as they gather to go to the church for the wedding.

Sometimes the groom asks for the privilege of sending these bouquets, and, if he does, he consults the bride and her mother as to what kind of flowers they wish to have sent as part of these important ensembles.

It is never good form for the best man to provide these flowers—there is no reason for his doing this.

3. It is customary to have only one best man, at either a formal or an informal wedding.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Why a Varied Diet Is Necessary to Health

Scurvy was most common in the days of long sea voyages. Wherever there was long continued lack of fresh vegetables and fruits, scurvy would appear. Armies and navies suffered tremendously and it proved to be a decisive factor in many battles.

Napoleon often mentioned the importance of his soldiers having good food. Though he knew nothing about vitamins, he probably ordered fresh vegetables and fruits for his men whenever possible.

Without fresh vegetables and fruits the signs of scurvey soon appear. There is a lack of energy and no desire for work. There is mental as well as physical fatigue. Appetite fails and the individual becomes extremely irritable.

In modern times it is rare to have further symptoms. But in extreme cases there appear small hemorrhages like blood blisters in the skin and lining of the mouth. The gums may become swollen and bleed upon the slightest touch. In such cases the teeth are extremely sensitive, become loose and may fall out.

Formerly this disease was met in orphan asylums and institutions where errors in the diet were all too common. With increasing knowledge of vitamins and the importance of fruit juice as part of the daily diet, this tendency is becoming rare.

In any institution or boarding school, where there is evidence of much laziness and lack of "pep" in the children, the diet should be carefully scrutinized. If there is lack of the proper foods, correction of the feeding will act like magic. The laziness and listlessness of the youngsters will disappear.

We are not so much concerned about the cause of scurvy as we are about the preventions of scurvy. Since certain foods are rich in the elements that will prevent these uncomfortable symptoms, we should always partake of these foods.

Orange juice and tomato juice are most important "antiscorbutic" foods. It has been shown that the juice of one orange or of one tomato taken daily, will prevent scurvy in an adult.

Children and infants, regardless of what their diet is otherwise, should have in addition a daily quota of orange or tomato juice. The amount may vary from one teaspoonful, to the juice of the entire fruit, depending upon the age of the child.

Green vegetables, cabbage, young carrots, spinach, potatoes and rhubarb are important in their content of vitamin C. It is the presence of this particular vitamin that insures safety from scurvy.

The importance of green vegetables and fruits cannot be overstressed. They are useful, not only in the treatment and prevention of scurvy, but also for the general maintenance of good health.

Wise Words

Anger is a transient hatred; or, at least, very like it.—South.

There is no vice which mankind carries to such wild extremes as that of avarice.—Swift.

Every man is the maker of his own fortune, and must be, in some measure, the trumpet of his fame.—Dryden.

The praise of the envious is far less creditable than their censure; they praise only that which they can surpass, but that which surpasses them, they censure.—Colton.

Life is, in fact, a system of relations rather than a positive and independent existence; and he who would be happy himself, and make others happy, must carefully preserve these relations.—Anon.

As a man should always be upon his guard against the vices to which he is most exposed, so should we take a more ordinary care not to lie at the mercy of the weather in our moral conduct.—Addison.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

Men are so much like other animals, if you chase them they run. Yet it's difficult to make girls see what they are doing that ruins their chances when they proceed in this way.

A girl who is terribly afraid of being identified, writes that she is about "at the end of her string," to put it her way. So is her mother, as she is afraid if she doesn't say something to the young man in question about his intentions, her mother will.

And right there I can see why the young man is dodging. The girl and her mother have decided that the girl is going to marry THAT YOUNG MAN! Let him try to escape! She writes him and it takes him several days to get around to answering the letter. He writes her and she sends a special delivery air mail answer the same afternoon. Yet she can't see why his interest lags!

A man who has gone with a girl for three years and said he loved her and didn't ask her to marry him, and then the love seemed to dwindled away to nothing, isn't going to get all excited about the girl again, especially if he knows that she is waiting to grab him and hurry him off to a minister.

Some girl in the town where he goes to college is certain to act indifferent and land him.

I'll give her advice, but I doubt if she will take it. Don't answer his letters till he writes a second time. Stop asking him if he loves you, and write jovial letters about the good times you are having. Then TRY to have them. You are becoming a social mushroom, growing in a dark cellar and refusing to go out into the sunshine. Why should a girl like that be interesting to a young man who is out doing things and meeting people?

Unless you get an interest in something besides landing that man you are not only going out of his life, but you won't have any charm with which to attract anyone else. Can't you be interested in anything but getting married?

I've noticed that in many instances where a girl has waited for years to marry a man, and camped on his trail and finally landed him, she has found out that he wasn't at all what she wanted. Then she began to wish that she had broadened out a bit and met people and been less serious about matrimony.

The way to get married and to fall in love is to let it happen to you when you aren't looking. Men are always chasing the women who aren't easy to get. Then why be so soft?

As for men acting mean to a girl like you who does nothing to aggravate him, it's a sure sign he is getting fed up. If he isn't too sick of it you might get him back with a little indifference. Stop feeding devotion to a man who is mean to you.

Your mother should get a good shaking for not helping you to snap out of it, instead of thinking of speaking to the young man about his intentions. That just isn't being done, my dear. You are permitting yourself to become an irritation and men don't marry those.

Household Hints

Instead of using ordinary twine to hang up the brooms, brushes and mops, use picture wire. It will wear forever and is easily hung on a hook on account of its being so stiff.

If the soup does not look clear and in this way loses its appetizing appearance, drop a white of an egg into it and when it curdles remove it. It will take with it any impurity that is clouding your broth.

Wooden bowls and spoons should be scrubbed with bathbrick or sand in preference to soap. This will whiten the wood and make it smooth and glossy and there is no chance of a soapy taste getting into the wood.

When rolling out dough for pastry, it will be more crisp and flaky if a large, round bottle filled with cold water is used instead of a wooden rolling pin. The very newest rolling pins are made of heavy glass, with a screwable end, which may be removed and the ice put in the center of the pin. It's marvelous and a great help to any pie.

Keeping a good disposition is an important detail that even meticulous housewives sometimes overlook. And sometimes it takes working over just the same as a tedious bit of housework. It is a much simpler thing for the woman at home to indulge a bad mood or a fit of depression than it is for the office worker. The constantly ill-humored person in an office soon finds that he is in disfavor, and if he is smart he'll snap out of it. Women at home who do not have to come in contact with the outside world should make an even greater effort to control their moods. It makes for their own beauty and health as well as the happiness of their families.

Horoscopes

Sunday, December 28

Sunday's horoscope is a forecast of the unusual, changeable and erratic, according to the stellar activities of intriguing planets. There may be an accent on the spectacular and peculiar, with marvelous experiences or subtle undermining situations. Sudden change, illness and misunderstanding in employment may be disturbing factors, which have promise of being reconciled by mystical or spiritual equations.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of unusual, and, possibly, baffling experiences and adventures. With a stress of spiritual or occult forces there may be compensations for anxieties regarding health, employment and domestic concerns. Sudden change and distressing opposition may be offset by very clever management, stratagem or secret agreements. Diplomacy may be the best policy.

A child born on this day may be inclined to make its way through life by diplomacy, subtlety and craft. He may have many peculiar talents or adventures.

Monday, December 29

Monday's astrological forecast is not an auspicious one. Although the faculties and forces may be under high stimulus for initiative and adventure, yet there are a number of adverse positions calling for calm deliberation and practical manipulation, with restraint and good judgment. All financial arrangements should be conservatively considered, and writings and contracts handled with precaution.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively year, with the spirit of adventure and enterprise under high stimulus, but there may be many stubborn obstacles to overcome by discretion and conservatism. Handle funds and sign all writings with unusual precaution.

A child born on this day may be adventurous, energetic and resourceful, but may be disposed to be reckless and extravagant in use of its funds.

Better-Looking Fringe

Fringed napkins will look better if they are slapped against the ironing board and the fringe loosened and made fluffy before they are pressed with an iron.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Toothpicks cause abrasions of the gums and subsequent infections. Foreign particles lodged between the teeth should be removed with dental floss.

In cold weather the hands must be dried thoroughly after washing. Bland soaps are particularly necessary in the winter season. Corn meal mixed with a little soap suds not only clears knuckle wrinkles of dark lines, but softens the texture of the skin. Cold water and hot water are equally bad for little mitts.

Hair curling fluids are made with a gelatine base, furnished by flaxseed or quinceseed. Sometimes, when the bottle has been opened, the mass is too thick, in which case it can be thinned with rubbing alcohol. Alcohol causes the curls to dry more quickly. Poor policy to try to compound a curling fluid. Proprietary articles are more satisfactory.

Carving down too-abundant hips is a matter of hard work, but it can be achieved. It is accomplished by rolling on the floor, running up and down stairs, lying on the back and pretending to pedal a bicycle. The abdominal band or properly fitted corselet acts as a restraining influence. Toe-dancing increases the size of the calves of the legs, but it knocks off fat that has lodged on hips and abdomen.

When nerves are tying themselves into knots, the old bean aches and life doesn't look any too pleasing, have a hot bath and a shampoo. Hot water is relaxing to muscles, and relaxed muscles tell nerves to behave properly. Dousing the head with soap suds and rinsing the glorious mop with warm water chases aches and worries away. Finish with a cold ducking and friction with a coarse towel. Great little pick-up treatment.

No girl can line up among the beauty dollies unless her teeth are white, healthy and even. The Paris model, the chic chapeau, sassy shoes and carefully laid-on complexion are without charm or flavor if teeth are bad. Dentistry can overcome the worst effects. Raw vegetables are good for the teeth, providing dentine material. Orange juice, tomato juice and milk make teeth strong and happy. Twice a year gird on your armor of courage and march to the dentist's chair.

Oily scales that stick to the scalp must never be removed forcibly. Apply sulphur ointment or olive oil; let remain on over night. Next morning shampoo the hair thoroughly with melted soap.

The barebacks are out in full force. Evening gowns show short sleeves, but shoulders and backs are in evidence. Beauty shops give back treatments, consisting of bleaching packs, muscle strapping; applications of soothing emollients to create the satin skin, talcum rubs to improve texture, boric acid-compresses to clear away blackheads that may have settled on the cutaneous premises.

"A Loan to Fit Your Need!"
If the customer owns real estate, or has a marketable equity in it, he may borrow on his own signature only. No collateral or endorsements are required. Etc.
If the customer does no real estate, or has only a small equity, he can borrow with the endorsement of one of two reputable persons.
Loans in this class are repayable in weekly, bi-weekly or monthly payments, spread out over a period of 50 weeks. The borrower pays a fixed sum per week, which includes both interest and payment on principal. There are no fees or extras of any sort. On the contrary, for every week on which payment has been made on the dead date, a refund is granted to the borrower's account, and at the last payment he receives a check for all the refunds earned.
We have also a 20-month plan for real estate and endorsement loans, with special cash discounts for prompt payments. Ask about this, too.

RECOVERY SEEN FOR 1931 BY EXPERTS

Economists Believe Start Of Long-Term Upswing Will Arrive Next Year

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—When foreign governments get into currency entanglements, the remedy nowadays appears to be to call in E. W. Kemmerer, Princeton University economist and internationally famous monetary pathologist.

Mr. Rukeyser

I caught hold of Dr. Kemmerer as he was about to leave for South America on a financial mission, which will keep him away until next summer. Asked whether he thought that the prevailing curbstone brand of pessimism was warranted, this specialist told me, without hesitation:

"I belive that long-term business recovery will get under way during the year 1931."

HOPEFUL VIEW

Another authority on speculation and finance, S. S. Huebner, economist of the University of Pennsylvania, took a similar hopeful view. In giving his views, he said:

"The periodic bad times which we have are simply the result of periodic sprees which we resort to every six, seven or eight years in the field of real estate, merchandising and the stock market, and in every other economic way. And just as the spree is excessive, so the period of depression which inevitably follows is about equally excessive.

"At either time the economic reasoning was rather ridiculous. Many emphasized the idea that the new era was here in 1929, and so I note that many again believe that everything is different during this period of depression from what has ever been before. Of course all such ideas are foolish. In due course of time this country will, just as it always has in the past, emerge from the existing period of depression, and before many years we shall forget all about it. The only question is the length of time of the depression. This varies greatly from one cycle to another. As a matter of fact, if retail prices and wages could be liquidated as nearly everything else has been liquidated, we would emerge from the present depression very swiftly. But of course everybody is resisting deflation in these two important particulars, and this means of course a longer drawn out affair than would otherwise be the case."

RETAIL PRICE

An answer to the assertion that retail prices are still out of line was given by Samuel W. Reyburn, president of the Associated Dry Goods Company, who says, in a message to this column:

"I might say that the evidence I got from a survey of prices showed considerable reductions this year over last year on nearly all lines of merchandise. These reductions ran from a small percentage up to 50 per cent or 60 per cent, and probably the average at that time was a little over 15 per cent. Now, I believe it is about 20 per cent.

"There is always somewhat of a lag in the reduction of prices as the goods move from one process or dealer to another on their way from the point of origin to the final consumer. My observations in my 16 years of experience in this business lead me to believe it is not nearly as great as manufacturers, economists, and the public generally believe."

EXPECTING TO INCREASE BUSINESS

BANK DEBITS LARGER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—For the week ended December 20, 1930, bank debits, outside New York City were larger than they have been in the past five weeks, but were smaller when compared with the corresponding week in 1929. Interest rates for both call and time money showed increases over the preceding week. Business failures as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., numbered 604 as compared with 498 for the week of December 21, 1929.

Wholesale prices of 120 commodities were only fractionally lower than the previous week due mainly to lower prices paid for agricultural products. The prices of red winter wheat at Kansas City and middling cotton at New York reflecting the tightening of prices in general, showed very slight change from the preceding period. Like all wholesale prices they were lower than a year ago. The prices of leading iron and steel products remained practically at their previous levels. Bank loans and discounts were greater and the Federal Reserve ratio higher for the week of December 20, 1930, when contrasted with the corresponding period in 1928, two years ago.

LOANS DECLINE $89,000,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Broker's loans decreased $89,000,000 during the week ended December 24, to a total of $1,919,000,000, according to the weekly report of the Federal Reserve Board. This compares with $2,008,000,000 on December 17, and $3,328,000,000 on December 24, 1929.

This week's decrease was the thirteenth consecutive weekly drop and brings the total decrease since September 24 to $1,303,000,000. The present total was a new low record for the present series of figures started with the year 1926, and a low for the previous series since December, 1924. The high record for brokers' loans was reached October 2, 1929, at $6,804,000,000, more than three times the present total.

Mexico to Improve Silver Exchange

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The Mexican Congress has conferred special powers on the chief executive to take necessary steps to improve the position of exchange and silver currency in Mexico, according to advices received in the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache George Wythe, Mexico City. An effort is to be made to increase the use of silver coins; for example, all high officials of the Mexican Government, from the President down, will be paid in silver.

Increase Expected for Forgings Company

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE PITTSBURGH FORGINGS Company is expected to have a larger volume of business and to show greater earnings in 1931 than in 1930, Edwin Hodge, Jr., president of the company, said yesterday.

The principal customers are railroads. Most of them have been economizing on the purchase of new cars and have been delaying repairs to existing rolling stock during the past year. This work cannot be neglected for an indefinite period. As soon as the carriers have indications in increasing traffic the Pittsburgh Forgings Company will start to benefit from demand for complete cars as well as for forged parts. The organization also makes automobile parts. An increased market is expected in this field.

In spite of the unsettled state of business during 1930, the company's annual report will show only a moderate decline in earnings. Net profit is expected to be equivalent to about $1.60 a share on 220,000 shares of stock. In the year ended December 31, 1929, net profit reached $592,428, which was equivalent to $2.69 a share on the present capitalization. This compared with $412,177 or $1.87 a share in the preceding fiscal year. Net profit is after deducting interest, depreciation, taxes and all other charges. It has been adjusted to include earnings of recently acquired subsidiaries.

Pays $1 a Share

DIRECTORS RECENTLY placed the stock on an annual dividend basis of $1 a share. This replaced the $1.60 dividend basis established in January, 1929.

While the earnings for the year will cover the higher rate, directors felt that it was advisable to retain as strong a cash position as possible during the present uncertain condition of business.

Following this policy the company has materially improved its financial position. Funded debt has been reduced by the retirement of $25,000 of bonds. The equity of the common stock has also been increased by the retirement of $100,000 of the 7 per cent preferred stock of the Greenville Steel Car Company, a subsidiary. Cash has been materially increased during the past few months. This item alone is several times current liabilities.

Business Expanded

THE COMPANY'S ACTIVITIES have been expanded and its lines of production diversified recently by the acquisition of two other companies. In October, 1929, the Riverside Forge and Machine Company of Jackson, Mich., manufacturer of automobile hubs, was purchased.

In January, 1930, the company also acquired all the common stock of the Greenville Steel Car Company, a maker of railroad cars with assets of over $1,000,000. This organization is a consumer of the products of the parent company.

Plant in Moon Township

THE PRINCIPAL PLANT, where forged parts are made, is located on a tract of 13.5 acres in Moon Township, near Coraopolis. The balance sheet of June 30, 1930, showed physical properties valued at $1,787,377 and total assets of $3,800,224. Against this funded debt now amounts to only $475,000. These bonds are due serially from 1930 to 1938. The Greenville Steel Car Company was acquired by an exchange of stock requiring the issuing of 20,000 additional shares.

SEASONAL LULL REFLECTED IN GLASS MART

Price Changes Seen as Stabilization Move; Factory Output Low

The market for flat glass products, in line with the customary end of the year lull, was exceptionally quiet the past week, according to American Glass Review. Such business as developed in both window and plate glass was for immediate requirements and the same may be said of the rolled and wire glass branch. Relatively little change was to be noted in factory operating schedules, which were holding at substantially the same low level as for weeks past.

Of major interest and importance to all factors in the window glass industry was the action of leading manufacturers readjusting selling prices, effective from December 22. This move is in the direction of further stabilization. While the ultimate effect on buying trends is as yet undetermined, the prevailing opinion is that it will result in no immediate stimulus to speak of in demand.

1931 OUTLOOK

With 1931 about to be ushered in and the records for this year's business now practically closed, all factors in the flat glass trade are awaiting the turn of the year, appraising prospects for the first quarter.

Reflecting the appreciable slump in building, as well as the curtailment in all other consuming industries, demand for flat glass products has been far below normal virtually throughout the year. During a considerable part of 1930 marketing conditions in both the window and rolled glass branches have likewise been rather unsatisfactory. Efforts toward stabilization have not been fruitless, however, with some progress made in that direction.

OUTPUT CUT

In the window glass field in particular it would seem that conditions could not be more unfavorable than have existed this year. Despite the obstacles encountered, however, the situation has not been without its redeeming features. Production of this commodity for several months has been running below demand, and during mid-summer receded to a new modern low figure.

Curtailment this year in the plate glass branch has been pronounced, especially so as contrasted with the record 1929 output and consumption of this product. While both the manufacturers and distributing trade are optimistic as to the future, it is realized that any appreciable improvement in demand must await a revival of activities in principal consuming industries.

LESS NEW CARS PUT IN SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Class I railroads of the United States in the first 11 months of 1930 placed 75,936 new freight cars in service, the car service division of the American Railway Association has announced. In the same period last year 76,773 new freight cars were placed in service.

Of the new freight cars installed, 39,589 were box cars, an increase of 2,115, compared with such installations in the first 11 months of 1929. There were also 27,564 new coal cars placed in service in the 11 months this year, a reduction of 1,074 compared with the same period last year. In addition, there were installed in the 11 months' period this year 3,622 flat cars, 3,847 refrigerator cars, 913 stock cars and 401 miscellaneous cars.

The railroads on December 1 this year had 3,884 new freight cars on order, compared with 30,569 on the same day last year, and 14,375 on the same day two years ago.

Siam Turning to Use of U. S. Machines

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The extent to which American machinery is penetrating the more remote world markets is indicated in a trade bulletin just issued by the industrial machinery division of the Commerce Department. This bulletin embodies the results of an extensive study into the machinery situation in Siam, recently completed by American Trade Commissioner Don C. Bliss, of Singapore.

Siam is fundamentally an agricultural country and the great bulk of its machinery requirements are connected with its four major industries—rice milling, tin mining, teak lumbering and sawmilling. Its imports of machinery, however, have shown a steady rise during recent years, reaching a total value in 1928-29 of approximately $6,000,000 as compared with $1,225,000 during the fiscal year 1925. Dredging machinery for the tin mines has represented the greater part of these imports, about 75 per cent of which is of British origin.

STEEL PLANT OPERATIONS LIGHTER

Precedents Indicate Gain In January Production; Prices Decidedly Firm

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Operating rates of steel mills this week and next have little significance as an indication of general trade conditions since the holidays make an interruption. There has been a lighter average operation this week than would have been the case if Christmas had come later in the week, as many departments ran up to the holiday and then closed for the remainder of the week.

For comparative purposes it is better to take the month of December as a whole, and a forecast may now be made that the official report of steel ingot production in December will show production at about 35 per cent of capacity. The official computation is made on the basis of capacity per working day, 311 working days in the year, and for December the computation will merely count out Christmas and the four Sundays. A 35 per cent rate would compare with 44.64 per cent for November, 50.32 per cent for October, 55.10 per cent for September and 59.46 per cent for August.

FORECASTS LIMITED

The September and October decreases were very unfavorable since they occurred at a time when ordinarily there would be seasonal increase, and that may be taken, in general, as a reflection of general business conditions growing poorer. The November and December decreases in steel production may be considered strictly seasonal. Should the forthcoming report show less than 35 per cent ingot production in December, allowance should be made for the probability that stocks of ingots and semi-finished steel were reduced, whereby shipments of finished steel would be somewhat greater than indicated by the ingot figure.

While steel producers have persisted in refraining from predicting any great increase in steel production in January, preferring rather to predict a substantial increase in buying late in January or early in February, uniform precedents combined with influence now visible point to there being a marked increase in actual steel production in January. A rough but apparently conservative guess would be a 10-point increase, i. e., if December comes out at 35 per cent ingot production, January would show 45 per cent, or a rise to last month's rate.

PRICE SITUATION

Apart from seasonal increase fully to be expected in requirements of numerous miscellaneous steel consuming lines, three or four particular lines are to be counted upon for increases in January over December, viz.: rails, automobiles, tin plate and quite possibly farm implements.

As to steadiness, prices make the best showing in a year and a half, for every line is now steady, indeed decidedly firm, whereas after the strong market of early 1929 two lines began to weaken in June of that year, and since then, until recently, there were declines and irregularities in various lines. This price stability has prompted a moderate amount of first quarter contracting in several lines. The contracts reflect confidence in prices, but are not productive of actual tonnage except as specifications or shipping orders are filed against them.

Real Estate

Officers for the new year will be installed by the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board next Tuesday at a luncheon in the Blue Room of the William Penn Hotel. J. W. Cree, Jr., retiring president, will submit his annual report. At the conclusion of his report Cree will turn the gavel over to Roy R. Cappe, president-elect, who will preside during the installation.

A brick and stone dwelling containing several store rooms and a bowling alley at 7724-26 Frankstown avenue, Thirteenth Ward, has been sold by Joseph V. and Peter A. Wallace to Homewood Commandry, Knights of Malta. According to the Finance Realty Company, broker, the selling price was approximately $20,000.

According to the report of C. C. C. Stotler, secretary of the Title Guaranty Company, there were 321 mortgages totaling $1,772,386.02 recorded from December 18 to and including December 23. Twenty-four of these mortgages amounting to $72,238.30 were purchase money mortgages. Two hundred and ninety-seven mortgages totaling $1,700,147.72 were straight mortgages.

The regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Building Owners and Managers Association will be held next Wednesday at 12:15 p. m., in McGreery's dining room. An open forum will follow the luncheon.

BUSINESS TURN HERE, SAYS KETCHAM

Electric President Views 1931 as Year in Which Situation Will Improve

By W. S. COUSINS,
International News Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—There is little doubt that we at last have turned, or are about to turn, the corner of business depression. Although the present year has been one of readjustment and of planning in which many major lines of business have fared rather badly, signs for 1931 give many indications of approaching improvement in the general situation.

The statement was made here today by Frank A. Ketcham, president of the Graybar Electric Company and one of the country's leading figures in the field of electrical merchandising, in an exclusive interview with International News Service. To Mr. Ketcham's way of thinking, one of the immediate encouraging signs is provided by the greater stability of wholesale prices and the firmer trend of the important commodity markets.

WILL TAKE TIME

Mr. Ketcham is emphatic, however, in warning industry and the public against expecting too rapid a recovery. In all probability, he states, the greater part of 1931 will be required to readjust business and industry to normal levels, although in no instance does he believe that such readjustments will be accompanied by sustained periods of decline or depression. He said:

"In times to come I believe the year 1930 will go down in history as one of the most severe periods of economic readjustment that we as a nation have ever experienced. But if this 1930 industrial stagnation and liquidation period has made all of us better informed of the basic principles underlying successful management, then who can say that perhaps it has not been worthwhile?

"Certainly it has tought American business, and the world in general, that production must be controlled and planned, if it is not to prove a boomerang; it has demonstrated the fallacies inherent in over-stimulating demand; and likewise, it has demonstrated that systems of distribution must be based upon a closer needs of the consumer in order that mass transportation, mass purchasing, financing, risk-bearing, grading and storing of commodities can be more efficiently and economically performed.

DISTRIBUTION IMPORTANT

"As I see it, this subject of economic distribution is destined to play a role of constantly increasing importance in the 1931 picture of general business and industrial activity. In making necessary revisions of our standards of production, output, credits, costs and other allied factors of modern business, more efficient use of the forces of distribution is going to help maintain necessary balance of the scales between producer and the ultimate consumer.

"In thus acting as a major stabilizer of business there is bound to develop, I believe, ever greater need in future for those organizations whose work it is to get our daily needs to the place of consumption. The age of specialization into which all business has grown, and in which it can be expected to develop even farther as time goes on, has placed ever more dependance of the producer and the consumer on the wholesaler for the efficient selection of goods, for their storage and warehousing, and finally for their shipment to points of consumption."

INDUSTRY CONSTRUCTIVE

Mr. Ketcham sees many indications that industry itself has decided to take more constructive action, based on the belief that liquidation has proceeded far enough. In addition is the fact that municipalities, states and national government are undertaking construction projects that will require the expenditure of many millions of dollars and the employment of thousands of men. He declared:

"In the final analysis, I think it well to bear in mind that this country is still the richest nation in the world, and from all indications appears likely to remain so for an indefinite number of years to come; that it has suffered no diminution in real wealth despite conditions of the past year; that its citizenship is progressive and alert; and finally, that our industrial, financial and business leaders are firmly convinced that an upturn in business is near at hand."

Delaware Charter Acquired by Dun

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—R. G. Dun Corporation, recently formed as a holding company for R. G. Dun Company and National Credit Office Company, has been chartered under laws of Delaware with authorized capital of 500,000 shares of no-par common stock and 100,000 of no-par preferred stock.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Quiet investment buying is believed to be coming into General Railway Signal on recessions. The final quarter of 1930 is likely to be its best of the year, is the opinion in some quarters. The company will enter 1931 with a large volume of unfilled orders, and several sizable contracts are being worked on, among them the Toronto Terminal business, which will not be completed before next summer. Recent subway contracts also are affecting operations. Pending plans for more subways, rapid transit lines, etc., in New York and other large cities present a good future field for General Railway Signal. It is the popular impression that earnings this year will run ahead of those of 1929.

Continental Can has been diversifying its activities steadily so that the company will be less dependent on fruit and vegetable packing. The company has 35 plants, and operations extend to all parts of this country and Cuba, with some interests in England also. Business of the company is said to have been affected only moderately by general conditions this year. Estimates are that between $4.75 and $5 a share will be shown, which would compare with $5.02 a share in 1929.

While a compilation, showing the average yield on common stocks at present at 9½ per cent is being actively discussed in the financial district, it is pointed out that many of the issues included in the list may not maintain their current rate unless business conditions and earnings reverse sharply. Well informed students advise clients to consider only the standard dividend payers which have had fairly satisfactory earnings and are in a cash position that will permit the continuation of the dividends now being paid. They do not favor taking stocks on which the high yield indicates doubt regarding the future.

Wall Street will probably be keeping a weather eye on the foreign exchange market over the next little while, inasmuch as it is the opinion in some circles that adjustments are destined to develop there which will ultimately lead to something in the way of an export gold movement. Such a trend, it is believed, will eventually result from this week's lowering of New York bank rate. Over a period of years we have been educated more or less to the theory that loss of gold constituted a bearish argument and conversely that an influx of the metal might be interpreted bullishly. But conditions are now such that a reversal of that theory is believed to be in order. It is now realized that if our foreign trade is to be stimulated there is need for stabilization of foreign currencies at somewhat higher levels. Our stocks of monetary gold are substantially in excess of our own needs, and naturally something of a redistribution of the metal is looked upon as essential to the betterment of world trade conditions.

The financial community is interested just now in seeking to determine the probable extent of the January reinvestment demand. It has been calculated that year-end disbursements in the form of interest and dividend payments will run close to the record total of a year ago. Thus the potential demand for securities should be substantial under the circumstances. But for the moment the question which is uppermost is what will be the temperament of the recipients of this vast fund. Will they proceed immediately to put the proceeds into securities, or will the tendency be to await a clearing of the financial and business skies before proceeding to do so? And Wall Street realizes that the prospects for the market in the first few weeks of the year will depend in no small way on the scope of the reinvestment demand.

This time next week we will have definitely left the year 1930 behind and entered upon the new 12 months. In the interval there is little to indicate that much of importance will be accomplished stockmarketwise. One ambitious statistician, however, thumbing the records back all the way to 1896, develops the fact that in only three years in the 34 years since that time, has the closing week of a year been marked by reactionary tendencies in the stock market. In the ther 31 years, to the close of 1929, the market, as measured by the averages, has closed at higher levels than prevailed the day before Christmas. The exceptions to the rule were 1911, 1925 and 1926, and in two of those instances the recovery on the first day of the new year more than offset the previous week's decline. Last year the market enjoyed a sharp advance in the final week.

DENIES PENNSY, SEABOARD DEAL

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Ethelbert W. Smith, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad in charge of operations in the central region, denied rumors current here that the Pennsylvania would take over the Seaboard Air Line Railway. Smith qualified in Federal court here as co-receiver in equity with Leigh R. Powell, Jr., president of the Seaboard, for the Seaboard Railway.

Smith said there was no reason to anticipate the Pennsylvania would use the Seaboard as a connection. He spoke of the "friendly relationship of the Pennsylvania with other Southern railroads," and said he was selected as a receiver principally because the Pennroad Corporation owns a large percentage of common stock of the Seaboard.

New York Telephone Expenditures O. K.'d

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Directors of New York Telephone Company have authorized the expenditure of $11,167,590 for new construction throughout the state. This brings the total appropriated since the beginning of the year to $97,660,195.

BRIDGE BUREAU ELIMINATES HAZARDS

Modern Methods Used by Maintenance Division In Conditioning Spans

By JAMES B. SANSOM,
Secretary, Allegheny County Planning Commission.

The introduction of modern methods has enabled the bridge maintenance division of the Allegheny County Department of Public Works to do nearly all of the repair work to most of the bridges in the county, and it is bringing the nearly 400 bridges in the county into up-to-date condition as to flooring, sidewalks, retaining walls, bridge rails and other features.

When the present Department of Public Works was organized seven years ago, many main bridges in the county were paved with wooden blocks, slippery when damp and in freezing weather the cause of hundreds of accidents and scores of deaths. A systematic campaign has been under way to replace this with other bridge floorings including asphalt, asphaltic concrete and in some cases brick.

CONTRACT JOBS

All of the work of the bridge bureau is under the direct supervision of V. R. Covell, chief engineer, while the bridge maintenance work is done under the direction of R. H. Helick, bridge maintenance engineer.

The first year of existence of the present bridge maintenance division, 11 bridge repair jobs were done by contract, this included a number of small jobs as well as two river bridges. In 1929 the number of contract jobs had been reduced to two for which the facilities of the bridge maintenance division were not suitable.

TOLL SPANS REPAIRED

All of the 17 toll bridges, freed and purchased by the county commissioners, have had to be almost rebuilt, numbers of bridges on what were formerly dirt roads have had to be straightened, widened and almost rebuilt when the roads were improved and this work has been largely taken over by the bridge bureau, which now has the most modern equipment that can be used in this work.

The number of the bridges which the bridge maintenance division has under its care is divided into four classes of which 32 are river bridges, 20 are structures having more than one span over large creeks, or are viaducts carrying roadways over wide ravines, 210 are single span iron structures and the balance are masonry or concrete single arch structures.

HIT AUTO SALES TO LIQUOR MEN

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 27.—Conspiracy charges are to be brought against finance corporations and automobile dealers who permit the sale on easy payments of automobiles to known bootleggers, according to District Attorney J. B. Adams. He indicated he already had evidence against a number of finance companies, and that charges would be instituted within a few days. Adams said:

"This financing of booze cars for known bootleggers has to stop. The finance companies that continue to provide easy payments for the bootleggers will have difficulty claiming their machines after they are seized and classed as contraband."

Adams says that after a notorious rum runner from West Virginia ran down and killed a child, a finance company "had the gall and brass to come into court, play dumb and attempt to recover the machine."

Regal Shoe to Buy 22 Retail Stores

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—Regal Shoe Company has completed negotiations for acquisition of 22 retail shoe stores in principal cities from Emerson Shoe Stores, a subsidiary of Emerson Shoe Company, of Rockland. Purchase brings total stores in the Regal chain to 105. Purchase involves fixtures, but not the merchandise in the stores. Regal will take possession on February 1, according to the contract, so that Emerson has until that time to market the merchandise in the stores. The purchase price is not divulged.

$65,000 ASKED IN 3 SUITS

Mr. and Mrs. Leo C. O'Malley filed a suit for $35,000 damages in Federal Court against Barnett Sakulsky of West Aliquippa, Pa. They allege in a bill of complaint that a truck owned by the defendant struck their son, Thomas O'Malley, 5, on Main street, Aliquippa, August 11, and severely injured him.

Injuries she sustained when she tripped over an iron pipe said to have been left near the curb by city employes in Kirkpatrick street near Biglow boulevard, last January 25 are the basis of a $10,000 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Lillian Robertson against the city.

Suit for $20,000 is on file today in Common Pleas Court against the Equitable Gas Company and Scott Township, instituted by Fred W. Langer, of Scott Township, on behalf of his minor daughter, Jean, who he says tripped over a curb box protruding above the sidewalks last August 16, receiving internal injuries.

W. VA. PERMITS WIDER BUSES

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Three interstate bus companies, operating in West Virginia, were granted special permits by F. O. Sanders, supervisor of transportation for the state road commission, to increase the width of their buses from 90 inches to not more than 96 inches.

Those affected by the permits were the newly organized Capitol Greyhound lines, operating in West Virginia between the Ohio state line at Parkersburg and the Virginia line near Capon Bridge; the Great Eastern Stages, operating through Hancock County on state route No. 79, and the Interstate Transit Company, operating between Wheeling and the Pennsylvania line near West Alexande on state route 9, 28.

Sanders also issued an order permitting the Pennsylvania and General Transit Company to suspend service over state routes Nos. 2 and 25 between the Pennsylvania state line near Eldersville and the Ohio state line at East Steubenville.

Greensboro Man Killed by Auto

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 27.—Tony Rocco, 35, of Greensboro, was killed almost instantly when struck by an auto which was driven by Steve Supo, of Mather, according to a coroner's report. The death was declared accidental and was said to have been caused when Rocco stepped into the path of Supo's machine.

HOLIDAY BUYING VOLUME UNDER YEAR AGO

Wearing Apparel Sales Improve but Little; Collections Still Slow

While holiday buying is brisk, it is not expected that the volume of business will equal that of the past few years, as purchases are averaging smaller and seem to be largely for necessities, although toys are selling quite well, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

Jobbers report orders fairly numerous but small in amount and prices are averaging lower than a year ago. Furniture sales continue light but rugs and floor coverings have been doing better than some of the other lines of household goods. There has been a 10 per cent cut in the price of carpets since the first of December. Movement of wearing apparel continues slow and little improvement is anticipated for several weeks. There is a fairly active demand for moderate priced jewelry, but with business for the year materially longer than in 1929. Lumber and other building materials continue to move slowly.

COAL OUTPUT OFF

Sanitary and heating equipment continue to move slowly. Electrical merchandise for the holiday trade has been moving quite actively, but electrical equipment generally is in rather slow demand.

Production of crude oil shows a slight reduction, and there has also been some falling off in demand for refined products with prices reduced in some quarters. Production of bituminous coal shows comparatively little change but is materially lower than a year ago, and buying continues light.

While there has been a slight improvement in collections, the average continues to be slower than normal.

CONVICT FREE 3 YEARS YIELDS

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A convict who fled the Leesburg State Prison Farm three years ago went back to his old cell yesterday of his own accord, beaten by a conscience and the world in which he had tried to lose himself.

Norman Emmons telephoned Col. E. B. Stone, the prisen keeper, he was coming. In half an hour he was again in custody. He was placed in solitary confinement and an extra "stretch" for the escape will be added to his seven to 12 years term.

He said he had been in Baltimore recently, working his way North to surrender. Two robbery charges were made against him while he was at liberty, in Salem and Gloucester counties, his two alleged confederates having been captured.

World's Largest Crane for Canada

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—One of the world's outstanding pieces of machinery was recently built in Collingwood, Ontario, on Georgian Bay, at a cost of about $1,500,000, according to a report from Consul Francis R. Stewart, Niagara Falls, Ontario, made public by the Department of Commerce. It is a gate-lifting crane, said to be the most powerful in the world, either stationary, movable or floating, which passed from Lake Erie through the Welland Canal on November 4, 1930, to its permanent berth at Fort Weller, the Lake Ontario entrance to the canal. This crane is capable of lifting vertically 500 tons, and has been constructed for use in case of emergency to lift the huge canal lock gates, including those at Thorold, each leaf of which weighs 500 tons.

Depositors Receive Banker's Assurance

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27.—Declaring that the Bankers Trust Company of Philadelphia is not and never has been other than a solvent institution, Samuel H. Barker, president, at a meeting of depositors, declared that the bank will pay 100 cents on every dollar deposited. According to Barker, officials of the bank have made satisfactory progress on a plan of reorganization.

STOCK MARKET RECEDES AT OPENING

Prices Open Irregularly Lower With Steels Off Nearly Point; Can Gains

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Further selling pressure carried share prices irregularly lower at the opening of today's stock market, although American Telephone and American Can gained ¼ and Corn Products ½. Westinghouse Electric, Chrysler, Southern Pacific, New York Central and Pennsylvania lost about 1 point, and U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel declined ¾. General Electric soared ⅝ of a point to a new low. Worthington dropped 1⅝.

The market steadied at the end of the first half hour, after several issues had broken through previous resistance points into new low ground. Bethlehem Steel dropped a point to a new minimum, then recovered most of its loss. Case declined 2, and rallied 1.

Westinghouse Electric declined nearly 2 points to a new low level, and International Telephone and Macy sagged a point. Montgomery Ward and Gillette fractions, all to new bottom levels. Other shares losing a point or so included United States Steel, National Biscuit, American Sugar, Johns Manville and Goodyear.

Corn Products held its initial gain, on the lifting of restrictions against the use of corn sugar in food products, which in turn probably tended to depress American sugar.

Further rumors regarding local tractions consolidation were reflected in a gain of 2½ points in Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, and nearly 2 in Manhattan Modified Guarantee. American Power and Light, and Atchison were also firm.

A drop below $2,000,000 in brokers' loans to a new low for recent years, and announcement of the lowest rates on record, which clearing house banks may pay on deposits, were overnight developments regarded as of favorable long term implications.

MORE RESERVE CREDIT OUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ending December 24, as reported by the Federal Reserve Banks, was $1,338,000,000, an increase of $33,000,000 compared with the preceding week and a decrease of $379,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1929.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that on December 24 total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $1,425,000, an increase of $128,000,000 for the week. This corresponds with an incerase of $177,000,000 in money in circulation and a decrease of $47,000,000 in treasury currency offset in part by decreases of $88,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $3,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, etc., and an increase of $5,000,000 in monetary gold stock.

Holdings of bills discounted increased $117,000,000 during the week, the principal changes being increases of $64,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, $17,000,000 at Philadelphia, $10,000,000 at Boston and $9,000,000 at Chicago.

The system's holdings of bills bought in open market increased $8,000,000 and of United States bonds $6,000,000, while holdings of treasury notes declined $7,000,000 and of treasury certificates and bills $50,000,000.

U. S. Steel Imports Gain in November

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The United States imported more and exported less iron and steel products in November than in October.

The Commerce Department announced iron and steel imports rose 4,751 gross tons to 43,095 last month. During the same period exports dropped from 131,850 to 11,968 tons.

Pig iron was the chief imported article, 18,292 tons coming into the country during the month. India was the chief importer, followed by Belgium, Germany and Great Britain.

Julius Kayser Cuts Prices on Hosiery

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Julius Kayser & Co. has made price reductions of $1 to $3 on full fashioned hosiery and 50 cents to $1.25 on rayon underwear. The wholesale prices become effective January 2 and the retail prices February 2.

Vote to Dissolve Omaha Exchange

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 27.—Its directors have voted unanimously to liquidate and dissolve the Omaha Stock Exchange. Opened for trading on June 7, this year. The Exchange's low volume of business in stocks and bonds led to their action.

Olds Motor Works Recalls Employes

DETROIT, Dec. 27.—Olds Motor works has recalled several thousand workers in the past few weeks to bring out the new 1931 model Oldsmobile. Fisher Body Company plant also is increasing output.

Clearing House Cuts Interest Rate

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The New York clearing house has announced a further reduction in interest rates which member banks may pay on deposits, the third reduction this year. The new rates became effective today.

The rate on deposits of individuals has been reduced from 1½ to 1 per cent which compares with 2½ per cent at the beginning of the year. Rate which member banks may pay on deposits of other banks has been reduced from 1½ to 1, compared to 2 at the start of the year, and on deposits of mutual savings banks, to 1½ from 2; and from 3 per cent at the first of the year.

The rate on time deposits, up to six months, is unchanged at 2 per cent, compared to 3½ as of last January. This rate was reduced on June 26.

MINSTRELS SIGN OFF TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor

We have sad news. Paul Dimond and the Duluth Minstrels answer their last curtain call tonight at 9:30 over KDKA. For more than two years we have hurried home Saturday nights to enjoy their fun making. We know that you will miss them too. "The Jamboree" also make their final bow on WCAE at 6.

* * *

To compromise in a way for the loss of these two good features, WCAE has hooked at our suggestion, the "Rodeheaver Sing" at 8. This non-sectarian program is led by Homer Rodeheaver, who became famous leading Billy Sunday choirs.

* * *

Ever know that Rodeheaver was born at Union Furnace, Hocking County, Ohio? He spent most of his boyhood in the Cumberland Mountains of East Tennessee, and later trudged his way through coal mines, logging camps and sawmills.

* * *

Describing little known perils of the Colorado River, Clyde Eddy comes on WCAE at 7:45 to tell of his adventurous trip down the stream in high and low waters.

* * *

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police who patrol the outposts of the Arctic and traders, trappers, missionaries in this same field, are to be gladdened tonight with a special barn dance from KDKA at 11:15.

* * *

QUESTION A DAY:

I am preparing an essay on people from small towns who made good in the city. Will you give me the names of some radio artists?—Helen McC., Schenley High.

Answer—We have chosen to answer your query publicly, Helen, because we believe it of interest to many others. Most of the radio people we have met were born in small towns. Phil Cook migrated from Coldwater, Mich.; Harvey Hayes from Greencastle, Ind.; Rudy Vallee, Westbrook, Me.; Robert L. Ripley, Santa Rosa, Cal.; Leonard Joy, Claremont, N. H.; Ted Husing, Deming, N. H.; Irene Beasley, Whitehaven, Tenn.; Jessica Dragonette, Calcutta, India; Mary McCoy, Great Bend, Kansas; Nesi Enslen, Delphos, Ohio; Harold Sanford, Northampton, Mass.; Robert Simmons, Fairplay, Mo.; S. L. "Roxy" Rothafel, Stillwater, Minn.; James Melton, Moultrie, Ga.; Ford Bond, Louisville, Ky.; Keith McLeod, Loveland, Col.; Al Llewelyn, Homestead, Pa.; Elsie Mae Gordon, some small place, so small that we've forgotten. We think this should help bring you an "E."

* * *

WEE BIT OF SCOTCH

When Graham McNamee was a choirboy he asked the Scotch choirmaster for a raise, pointing out that he alone could sing better than two other boys in the group.

Drawing McNamee to the side very confidentially the choirmaster whispered:

"Hoot, Mac, I canna gie ye that raise, but if ye'll tell me the names of the ither twa men, I'll fire them."

"BY THE WAY—"

If we're to judge by Milton Tully's Christmas card, he's doing fine in New York . . . An electric clock chime is to be synchronized with Zoel Parenteau's Orchestra so as to form part of an original composition, "The Chime Song," next Tuesday night over KDKA . . . Our congratulations to Paul Miller on his "Skippy and Ray" feature, one of the finest local sketches we've heard . . . WHK at Cleveland, 1390 kilocycles, is the only station in this region taking the East-West charity game on the Pacific Coast today at 5 o'clock . . . Ernie Smith, crack announcer of Hearst Radio Service, is to handle the mike . . . It would take 12 hours of steady reading to give you the news of today's Sun-Telegraph over the radio . . . The Radio Follies are to return to Columbia and WJAS in February . . . Bradford Browne and his Nit Wits get a permanent Friday berth starting January 2 at 10:30 . . . Kay Kyser is returning to WTAM soon . . . Tampa the Magician not only rated high with his fruit cake gift but he also had about the niftiest card in our pack . . . Alta Shultz, the McKeesport contralto, went novel with a tin foil greeting that was "different."

"MY PAL—"

A Pittsburgh woman writes Floyd Gibbons:

"Last Sunday night when I was listening to you, I forgot about opening the stove door, and just when you came to that part about falling 7,000 feet in an airplane, the house caught fire.

"Sunday before that, when you were talking about soldiers, our dog ate the canary birds. I am wondering what will happen next."

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Gene and Glenn, of Cleveland, said to be second only to Amos 'n' Andy in popularity with the ear-strappers, have at last entered the ranks of M. Aylesworth, and the networks now have another pair of comedians adept in dramatizing the common place activities of good-natured owls.

M. Aylesworth has long angled for the services of the Cleveland pair. Indeed, his pursuit of them dates from the time a nation puts its stamp of approval on the 15-minute dialogues of Amos 'n' Andy. At last in the big tent, Gene and Glenn are on what might be called a try-out spot. They are audible only at the coffee-boiling time of 8 to 8:15 a. m.

* * *

As creators of the characters, Jake and Lena, the Cleveland entertainers, who in private life are Gene Carroll and Glenn Rowell, have had as spectacular a rise in the radio world as Correll and Gosden of "Amos 'n' Andy" fame. Their early careers were not unlike those of the Negro impersonators. Both dabbled in the theater and both made their entry into radio in Chicago.

Gene plays the triple role of Jake, Lena and himself while Glenn sings, plays the piano and acts as "straight man" for the act.

* * *

With Gene and Glenn now gaining a national ear, Amos 'n' Andy are to raise their voices to Britain in the first American program in the history of broadcasting that lives been heard only by foreign listeners.

England has never cared much for our blackface comedy. It lhas persistently refused to accept our blackface stars on the stage. It is hard to believe it will show any greater consideration when they come via radio. Still, it will be an interesting experiment. It will prove, at least, how universal is the appeal of the negro characters.

* * *

Of all the builders of Manhattan's turrets those in charge of the new Empire State Building have the keenest sense of publicity. They followed the erection of a mooring mast for dirigibles with one of the most unusual Christmas Eve radio programs in New York's history—the broadcasting by means of a new system of amplifying horns of a carol service from the eighty-first floor of the building.

* * *

Not only were the songs transmitted to the nation's armchairs but they were audible through the loudspeaker system for a distance of five miles in the streets and buildings of the city. The event brought new attention—if any were needed—to Al Smith's latest enterprise.

2 BEATEN; GIRL, 7 MEN SOUGHT

Seven men and a young woman were sought by Bethel Township police today for an alleged attack upon Louis Wickowski, 55, and his son, Louis, Jr., 12, in their home in Coverdale last night. The father suffered a broken rib and bruises, and the son a broken nose.

According to police, the Wickowski family had retired, with the exception of Louis, Jr. He answered a knock at the back door and was dragged into the yard by the men. The girl looked on as he was beaten, he told police.

The father, hearing the noise, ran to the first floor and was met in the kitchen by the gang, knocked down and kicked, according to the police report, after which the assailants fled. Constable Ben W. Smith is directing the search for the marauders, who were recognized, police say, as residents of Coverdale.

SINGTON LIKELY TO SHINE ON COAST

ALABAMA MAY BE surpassed in some positions by Washington State in the big Tournament of Roses football game at Pasadena on New Year's Day, but one member of the Southern outfit who is pretty certain to stand out beyond his opposition is Freddie Sington, the giant Jewish tackle. This remarkable player, who was almost a unanimous choice for all-America honors, is pronounced by all the experts who have seen him in action one of the greatest forwards in many years, and his presence in the lineup is one factor that will weigh heavily in favor of Alabama's chances for victory in the coast battle.

Freddie Sington

Sington has been such an outstanding star in all branches of play, such an exceptional all-around gridder, that he is being called "the Benny Friedman of the line." In addition to being a master of every detail of tackle play, a whale of a player on regulation offensive and defensive work in the line, Sington does the punting and place kicking, makes holes, runs interference, tackles and does a lot of other stuff for his team and does it in a way that puts him pretty much in a class of his own.

SINGTON WAS A star last year, but this season, he has shone with even greater brilliance, and has been one of the most powerful factors in the terrific attack of the Crimson tide. All sorts of defensive combinations have been tried against him, but he has yet to be stopped. Standing 6 feet 3 inches and weighing 217 pounds, and combining a football brain with a remarkable physique, he has towered above all opposition.

Southern coaches and critics hold Freddie to be the greatest combination of strength, speed, courage and brains ever seen in football in that section of the country. Several times he has made the tackle after kicking off. Not only has he outplayed every lineman opposed to him, but on some occasions he has proved too much for two or three of them as opposing teams were rearranged to stop him and thus stop Alabama. Sington was chiefly responsible for the fact that only eight first downs were made through the Alabama line during the entire regular schedule of 1930.

TWO GOOD EXHIBITIONS of Western Conference basketball are promised for next week at the Stadium, with Purdue coming here to meet Pitt on Tuesday night and Indiana following for a tilt with the Panthers on the evening of New Year's Day. Hard games are in prospect for the locals.

The Purdue team is already a standout in the mid-West despite the fact that it has only two regulars from last season. These are the co-captains, John Wooden at guard and Harry Kellar at forward. Wooden was an all-East guard last season and will be the second player holding that distinction to appear here within 4 days, the other being Katz, who will be in the Syracuse lineup against Pitt tonight.

John Wooden

THE BOILERMAKERS, who won the Big Ten championship last year, have been the most consistent winners in the Conference ever since Ward Lampert became coach. In five straight years they have finished either first or in a tie for first and have been runners-up twice. This season, with three sophomores in the lineup, they have started out again in impressive style by defeating Notre Dame and Washington University, champion of the Missouri Valley Conference. Purdue men declare Wooden and Kellar to be the slickest pair of basketball handlers in mid-Western college circles. Indiana also will present a strong team, the outstanding stars being Veller and Campbell. Coach Carlson, of Pitt, says that neither Purdue nor Indiana should lose a Conference game this season except when they play each other.

FIGHT FOLLOWERS ARE wondering if history will repeat in the present visit to America of Len Harvey, English middleweight champion. For Harvey's home is in the village of Callington in Cornwall, just a few miles from Helston, where the great Bob Fitzsimmons was born more than 68 years ago.

After developing in Australia, Fitz came to this country and won the world middleweight championship by knocking out the original Jack Dempsey in 13 rounds at New Orleans on January 14, 1891. Harvey comes in quest of the same title. He gets his first test in New York on January 9 against Vince Dundee, who defeated Buck McTiernan here on Christmas Day, and hopes to go right on to the title now held by Mickey Walker.

THOUGH THIS IS Harvey's first trip away from home he is an old hand in the fight game, as he started boxing 10 years ago as a flyweight when he was only 13. He is credited with something like 200 knockouts in 350 fights.

Dave Shade

The most impressive thing in his record is a decision over Dave Shade. However, there was considerable question as to the fairness of that verdict, and Harvey will have to prove himself all over again in this country. Visiting English fighters have so often been disappointing that American fans no longer will accept any of them in advance as being as good as ther records indicate.

THE LINEUP OF Les Canadiens hockey team this year demonstrated again that that famous ice combination, as in the past, is no more all French as it is supposed to be than is Notre Dame's "Fighting Irish" football eleven made up of Hibernians. Joliat, La Rochell, Lepine and Leduc are real French-Canadians, but Morenz is a Swiss, the Mantha brothers, George and Silvio, are Italians, Burke and McCaffrey are Irish, Hainsworth is English, and a player who is listed on the program for each game Les Canadiens play in the National League as Des Rivieres is a big Swede from Minnesota whose proper name is Gus Rivers.

IS IT NECESSARY for a baseball player to like his manager in order to do his best work for him? Rogers Hornsby thinks not. It has been rumored that some of the Cubs are not overly fond of their new leader, but that doesn't bother Hornsby a bit. He says the Bruins showed a good spirit last season and predicts they won't let down next year just because he is managing them.

"You can't expect every man on the team to like the manager," he says. "I know that not all of them will like me, but I am only going to ask them to play their game. Liking doesn't always go. You have to have a winning team, a fighting, scrappy bunch, who will battle both you and the enemy. This baseball business is no popularity contest. I expect to get as much out of those Cubs as any other manager could get."

MIKE DONLIN, former colorful major league baseball figure, who came East to fill a theatrical engagement against the orders of his doctors, who warned him he was risking his life in leaving the climate of Southern California, has completed his stagework in New York and headed back to Hollywood.

Donlin says that the doctors were wrong and that instead of being harmed by the trip he gained six pounds while in the East. Waite Hoyt, Detroit pitcher, consulted Donlin about an offer he had received to go into the movies. Mike advised him to grab it, assuring him that there was "real dough" in that game. Hoyt, however, decided to stick to baseball for one more season, at least.

To start, according to Mr. Webster's widely-read dictionary, is "to commence a course, as a race or journey." In other words, you can't start if you already are under way, and the Schooley skaters hope to be speeding along in high by the time the Buffalo Bisons appear here New Year's Day.

Duke McCurry

Last Tuesday the Jackets, at a dead stop in the International League race, started moving by holding the Windsor Bulldogs to a 4-4 tie. Tonight the local battlers meet the Syracuse Stars at Duquesne Garden, and several thousand Pittsburgh ice fans are going to be greatly surprised if their favorites don't add to their momentum by taking the invaders into camp.

INJURED STARS RETURN

This optimism is due, in part, to the fact that Gordy Fraser and Duke McCurry, two of the Jacket mainstays, are to return to the lineup tonight after being out with injuries for about three weeks. Fraser will team with Art Berlett at the defense points, and Roger Smith and Leo Reise, veteran campaigners who have been helping big Art to carry the backfield burden, will form a relief combination.

McCurry, who hasn't participated in a losing battle this season and who did much to keep the Jackets from losing when he was "in there," will appear on one of the front lines. President-Manager Schooley and Coach Reid haven't yet decided just how they will line up their forwards, for they realize that Eddie Ouellette, something of a new star in that he only recently "found himself," also has to be given considerable consideration.

Schooley thinks that his present collection of stars should come very close to winning the league title. Tonight's game will be their first real test, for it will mark the first time that the Jackets have been at full strength since the local ice machine was remodeled.

NEW NET GUARDIAN

Syracuse gained a victory and a tie in three previous meetings with the locals and it is generally conceded that the Stars rank near the top as a fighting aggregation, but they may not be so difficult to subdue tonight because Bud Fisher, former Pittsburgh goalie whose play was a big factor in their only winning streak, is out of uniform because of salary differences. Farrell now is performing in the Syracuse cage, and the high scores rolled up by recent Syracuse opponents would indicate that he is somewhat inferior to Fisher as a net guardian.

The Jackets have not suffered defeat on home ice since November 20, and the Stars are going to have to do considerable battling to keep them from adding to their string of five straight successes here.

In staging their great three-goal rally against Windsor the Schooley icemen gave the fans their biggest thrill of the season, and a capacity crowd is expected to witness tonight's fight. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		Syracuse.
Cox	G	Farrell
Berlett	R. D	Hughes
Fraser	L. D	Fournier
Fields	C	Holmes
Cregg	R. W	Markle
Proudlock	L. W	Laude

LONDON, WINDSOR TIE

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 27.—The London Tesumsehs and Windsor Bulldogs played to a 1-1 tie here last night.

LONDON STARS RECALLED

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The Chicago Blackhawks, of the National Hockey League, have recalled Earl Miller and Stewie Adams from the London Club, of the International League.

In return, the Hawks sent Doc Romnes and Eddie Vokes, a pair of youngsters, on option to the Tecumsehs. Miller and Adams will return for tomorrow's match with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

VIRGINIA COACH RESIGNS

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 27.—Earl Abel, head football coach at the University of Virginia, has resigned. Neither he nor James G. Driver, director of athletics could be reached last night, but Prof. Allen Voshell, chairman of the faculty committee on athletics, confirmed a report of the resignation.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE WATERS OF PROVIDENCE SPRING—At the time of the Civil War, a prison camp was established in Andersonville, Ga., the camp being enclosed in a stockade through which ran a filthy stream. The prisoners longed and prayed not only for food but for good water to drink, and, on the night of August 16, 1864, during an electrical storm, a bolt of lightning miraculously opened up a pure water spring within the stockage. Believing the breaking forth of this spring to be a miracle of divine providence, the devout men in the prison named it "Providence Spring," the name given to its memorial pavilion in Prison Park, National Cemetery, Andersonville, Ga.

Coursing about in the collegiate sport tangle, one meets many fine characters. There are the Rocknes, the Waddells, the Overends, Meehans, Littles, Hinkhans, Sasses, Higgins and the Andreas. It is the latter with whom we are concerned today.

Lou Hayman

Lou Andreas, one of the outstanding figures in the athletic and scholastic history of Syracuse University, as fine a character as you will find anywhere, is in town today with his Syracuse basketball team. Andreas was here two years ago with another Orange quintet, played Pitt and took a licking.

Last year Syracuse was the only Eastern quintet, with the exception of West Virginia, to score a triumph over Pitt, and tonight, in the Stadium Pavilion, the Men of Andreas (and they have to be men, too) will seek to make it two in a row.

ORANGE FORMIDABLE

Coach Andreas has developed what appears to be a winning combination at Syracuse this year. He has constructed his team around capable performers such as Lou Hayman, former captain; Capt. Ken Beagle, Everett Kat, Al Elliot and the great Dan Fogarty, one of the best guards in the East, and the man who twice held Chipper Charley Hyatt in almost complete subjection.

I started out to write about Coach Andreas. Space forbids going into detail, but the visit here of the Orange team is made doubly pleasant by the presence of Lou, a gentleman, scholar and athlete. He is a member of the university faculty, president of the Faculty Club, was a former gridiron and court star and until this year was head coach of football.

The Orange has a record of three victories and one defeat to date. Dartmouth, decisively defeated here Tuesday by Pitt, scored a 36-29 triumph in the opening tussle of the year. Since then, Toronto University, Western Reserve (conquerors of Pitt) and Columbia have been toppled.

LINEUP UNCHANGED

Pitt's starting lineup against the Orange figures to be identical with the one that squared off against Dartmouth. Docky Kowallis is still numbered with the injured. Milt Cohen and Tim Lawry may be expected to go at the forwards, Buss Albright at center and Capt. Willie Arture and Don Smith at the guards.

Those who attend tonight's encounter may expect to see two teams almost alike in physical makeup. Syracuse, possibly, is the lightest varsity quintet in the country, the average weight being only about 156 pounds. Like Pitt, the Orange have four small forwards and guards and a big and rangy center.

TITLE FIGHT PROVES DULL

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A situation unique in the annals of boxing has arisen from the fiasco which was an attempt to settle the flyweight title dispute between Midget Wolgast and Frankie Genaro.

Genaro still is recognized as champion by the National Boxing Association, arbiter of champions for 26 states, while Wolgast still is privileged to wear the crown in New York and Pennsylvania. For the meeting of these two title claimants produced only a dull 15 round draw.

A half-hearted exhibition which produced only rare spurts of interesting fighting failed to strengthen the claim of either of the little fellows, while a record of the cheers and booes emitted by the crowd of 6,000, which paid $20,000 into the Madison Square Garden box office last night, was strongly on the side of the expressions of disapproval.

Not until the last three rounds did Wolgast and Genaro show any signs of their best form as they fought a defensive battle. After a warning by Referee Patsy Haley the veteran Genaro made a gallant attempt to start a fight in the closing rounds and Wolgast met him on about even terms, despite a closed left eye. Wolgast was exceedingly cautious at the start, especially after he ran into the right hand wallop in the second round that closed his eye and Genaro seemed to have lost a lot of stamina in his 10 years of milling and could not set the pace.

The exhibition was so uninspiring that the officials could not agree on how to award the points for a decision. One judge, Harold Barnes, picked Genaro, the other, Tommy Sheridan, voted Wolgast, while Referee Haley gave it up as a bad job and called it a draw. According to the Associated Press score sheet, Genaro's closing spurt gave him a slight margin. He was awarded 6 rounds to Wolgast's five. Four were called even. Genaro weighed 111 pounds, Wolgast 111¾.

Basketball Rules Quiz

PLAY NO. 23.

In this series, we have taken the readers through many of the plays involving the finer points of the game, so far as rules are applied, and in our two concluding articles will deal with comments on the code as expounded by Oswald Tower, who served as chairman of the committee.

"Although basketball is theoretically a 'no-contact game,' it is obvious that personal contact cannot be avoided entirely when 10 players are moving with great rapidity over a limited playing space. For instance, the ball is free; two opponents start quickly for the ball and collide. The personal contact may be serious, yet if both were in favorable positions from which to get the ball, and were intent only upon getting it, an unavoidable accident, and not a foul, occurs. On the other hand, if one player is about to catch the ball and an opponent behind him jumps into his back in an attempt to get the ball, the opponent commits a foul even though he is 'playing the ball. In this case, as in 'guarding from the rear,' the player behind usually is responsible for the contact because of his unfavorable position relative to the ball and to his opponent. In short, if personal contact results from a bona fide attempt to play the ball; if the players are in such positions that they could reasonably expect to gain the ball without contact; and if they use due care to avoid contact, such contact may be classed as accidental and need not be penalized."

JACK DEMPSEY, CAREY CONFER

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey has stepped back into the limelight of heavyweight boxing—but not as a fighter. The former champion, although criticising the current crop of heavyweights because "the ones that ought to fight each other don't" again refused to say "yes or no" in reply to questions concerning a return to the ring when he came back to New York after a long absence.

Dempsey is concerned principally with two businesses now, promoting fights and acting as guest referee, and his present visit has to do with the former task. Soon after his arrival, he was closeted with William F. Carey for a conference that was understood to concern a possible hook-up for a heavyweight battle at Miami, but no announcement was forthcoming.

JACOBS OPENS TITLE DEFENSE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—After 10 hours work in reducing the field of the National junior tennis championship from 144 players to 64 who were able to survive the second round, tennis officials had another big task today with 78 players under 15 years of age starting in pursuit of the boys' title while the junior contenders went on into third round play.

Emil Schnap, of the University of Michigan, placed eighth on the list of 10 seeded junior players, went down before the more experienced Sydney B. Wertheimer, of New York, in a three set match. Of the two 16-year old players, Wertheimer has done more playing indoors and he made his experience count as he come from behind to win, 4-6, 10-8, 6-3.

Richard Downing, of Jamaica High School, New York, the only seeded player who did not draw a first round bye, came through two matches. After beating C. L. Duval, of Groton, 6-2, 6-2. He overcame Emanuel Kauser, of New York, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4.

The other players on the list, led by the defending champion, William Jacobs, of the University of Pittsburgh, who trounced Irving Lindenbaum, of New York, 6-0, 6-2, won straight set victories. The players are Marco Hecht, New York; Bernard Friedman, Philadelphia, Kendall H. Cram, Nashville, Tenn.; Sidney Seligson, New York; Robert O. Bacon, Jr., New York; Giles Verstraten, New York, and S. E. Davenport, Harvard.

TUT HURT, BOUT OFF

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—King Tut, Minneapolis welterweight, has withdrawn from his engagement to meet Jackie Brady, of Syracuse, N. Y., here Friday night, due to a serious eye injury he suffered Monday while sparring in Minneapolis.

The Tipoff

W. Don Harrison and Coach Jock Sutherland will leave for New York after tonight's Pitt-Syracuse game, where they will attend the annual meeting tomorrow and Monday of the coaches and athletic managers. Bob Waddell and Buddy Overend, of Carnegie Tech, also will head for Gotham this evening. Holohan and Layden, of Duquesne, left last night.

As usual, Graduate Manager Overend, of Tech., and John Holohan, of Duquesne, were very kind in their Christmas remembrances. The good wife joins in this impoverished expression of thanks.

The team that lines up against Pitt tonight for Syracuse is the same that carried the colors of the Empire State university through a brilliant campaign last year. Syracuse captured 18 games out of the score played. Lou Hayman, the veteran forward, was the leading scorer of the team, with Katz, his running mate, a close second.

The press box at the Stadium Pavilion has been rebuilt (by the great Frank Mecca, of course) and greatly improved. From now on, only working press men will be admitted, which is a fine thing. I remember one game last year in which the box was so crowded that I wound up writing on Jack Sell's typewriter instead of my own.

Ray Buckley, you know, is the new freshman basketball coach at Tech. Buckley, Bert Munhall's assistant, is the gent who had all the high society of Albuquerque, New Mexico, standing on its collective ears when the Tartans stopped off there on their way to California last winter.

CARNEGIE TECH COPS

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 27.—Carnegie Tech's passers had a romp in winning from Youngstown Y. M. C. A., 48-15, in their court season inaugural here last night.

Capt. George Nease and Smith, sophomore forward, ran wild to score five field goals apiece. Coach Buzz Hogan used every man on his equad.

EAST-WEST ELEVENS CLASH FOR CHARITY

50,000 TO SEE TILT; KERR'S TEAM FAVORED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A Western team of all-stars faced a team of Eastern topnotchers in Kezar Stadium today in the sixth annual renewal of San Francisco's gridiron charity classic. Proceeds of the game go to the Shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital. It was expected 50,000 or more would attend the battle.

The Easterners had the opportunity of balancing their record of wins and loses. For the first three years, the Western eleven was victorious, while the Easterners have won the last two games.

Pre-game speculation favored the East. Its squad listed among its ranks such stars as Len MacAlcon, Colgate fullback and high scorer of the East; Hank Bruder, Northwestern halfback ace; Tony Blanda, powerful Fordham center; George Van Bibber, Purdue tackle, and many others.

KERR PRAISES TEAM

The West looked to its aerial attack for its offensive threat, although the line crashing ability of Jarring Jim Bausch, University of Kansas fullback, was not discounted.

Andy Kerr, Colgate mentor, speaking for the East, said:

"We have the best Eastern team in the history of the Shrine game, yet I hesitate to say we will win. We hope to get the 'break' that I believe will eventually decide the issue."

Percy Locey, of the San Francisco Olympic Club and co-coach of the Westerners, announced:

"We have lost two straight games to the East. We must win this one. I think that old saying 'the team that won't be beaten, ain't been beaten' will hold good today. I have never seen a squad of men with more fighting spirit than this Western team."

IRISH, STAR ELEVENS SET

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—With a week of intensive training behind them, a squad of all-Notre Dame football stars, and another team made up of Middle-western, Southern and Western gridsters, rested yesterday, primed for today's contest to be staged for charity.

The all-Rockne aggregation, made up almost entirely of members of the two undefeated elevens of 1929 and 1930, reigned favorites over their opponents, despite last minute additions to the all-star squad.

Felber, a North Dakota sophomore end, won a place on the all-star team by his showing against the Los Angeles Firemen Christmas Day. While he will not start, he probably will see considerable action. The probable starting lineup:

All-Notre Dame		All-Stars

CHARITY GAME ON AIR TODAY

The East-West all-star game in Kezar Stadium, San Francisco, today, annual charity tussle for the benefit of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, will be broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System, with the Hearst Radio Service co-operating.

Ernie Smith, popular Hearst Radio Service announcer, will be at the microphone. Between halves Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, governor-elect of California, will greet those who tune in on the game. Famous coaches from all sections of the country also will talk. The broadcast will begin at 5 o'clock, Eastern time.

John Karcis and Pete Flanagan, of Carnegie Tech, and Charley Tully, of Pitt, will play in the North-South benefit game at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow. Jack McBride, former Syracuse all-America fullback, is coaching the all-Northern eleven. Stumpy Thomasson, of Georgia Tech, is in charge of the all-Southern eleven.

Cal Shawley, tackle; Mike Kaplan, end; Joe Miller, halfback, and Cooper French, halfback, of Penn State, also are members of the North squad.

First U. P. Community House of the North Side may not win the West Penn League championship this season, but in Johnny Martens, the United Presbyterians boast a youngster who compares with the best amateur players in that circuit.

Community House, the home of A. A. U. basketball championship teams, the North Siders having won the title twice in the last three years, is making a fine showing in local amateur circles this winter, due in a great measure to young Martens.

Martens is the type of floor star that is a credit to the popular winter indoor sport. He is a fighter from the first whistle and his spirit has had a tendency to keep his teammates on their toes in all games.

The youngster did not show much for Community House last winter, but so far this season his work has been of high order. He is a good floor man, a fine shot and an excellent team-worker, half the battle in offensive basketball. This boy must be watched at all times to prevent him from ringing up baskets for the North Siders.

The J. J. Mieles kept their place in the Allegheny County League race by nosing out Ellwood City, 33-31, at Columbus Temple last night. The winner led, 24-20, at half time.

The Fintex County League Club ended I. K. S.'s winning streak by copping, 32-22, on the Settlement House floor.

St. Wendelins walloped St. James in the Lyceum League, the score being 54-24, while St. Paul bumped Goodwill, 33-27, in the Junior League. Mt. Washington Triangles bested St. Ann's, 45-27, in the Metropolitan loop.

In other independent contests, the Penn Five whipped Rankin A. C., 51-30; I. K. S. Junior Varsity knocked off Steubenville, 64-44, and P. A. A. walloped the Carnegie Club, 53-16.

CRAWLEY BEATS ANDRUCCI

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

Tommy Crawley, of the South Side, outmauled Andy Andrucci, of the East End, in a messy 10-round main bout before only a fair-sized crowd in the Moose Temple last night. He came from behind after losing the first three rounds to carry the next five, during which he forced Andrucci to hold on repeatedly under a bombardment of blows to the body. Andrucci did not get back into the running until the last two rounds, in which he forced the fighting and carried off the honors. The rally, like the well-known pardon, came too late, however, to turn the tide for him, the decision for Crawley being unanimous. Crawley weighed 135½ and Andrucci 138 at 3 p. m.

GETS BAD BREAK

Billy Flanagan, of Clearfield, 156½, suffered a bad break in the semi-final with Al Becker, of Sheraden, 159, when Referee Al Grayber had to call a halt after 2 minutes 5 seconds of the fifth round to save him from further damage to cuts on both eyes. The right eye had been cut in the third round and was closed, while the left eye began to trickle blood just before Grayber intervened. Flanagan was winning in every round, including the final one. He was too fast and boxed too well for the rugged Becker, whose best efforts went for naught against the shiftiness of his foe.

Marcus Noll, southpaw Negro, of the North Side, 150¾, won by a technical knockout over Frankie Frey, tall, crude mixer from New Castle, 150, when Referee Grayber stopped the bout after 2 minutes 28 seconds of the third round. Frey took two counts of nine in the first round and was down for no count in the second and for nine and three in the third.

SPEIGEL WHIPS WARD

Joey Speigel, of Uniontown, former National junior amateur lightweight champion, 145, handed Tommy Ward, of the South Side, 143½, a bad lacing throughout the six-round opener, Tommy just escaping a knockout in the final round, when he had to hold and tincan to last through to the bell.

Frank Brown and Frank Ferris were the judges, Tommy Grant and A. C. Couch the timers, Dr. M. R. Goldman the commission physician and Ray Eberle the announcer.

Jimmy Kelly and Young Rudy will box the windup at the Moose next Friday night, Jackie Rodgers is booked there for January 9 and Tony Herrera is tentatively matched for the following week.

Between Rounds

Jackie Rodgers is training especially for a knockout victory when he meets Johnny Datto, Cleveland Filipino, in their 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden, New Year's afternoon. He believes it will be a case of stopping Datto, a notorious hard hitter, or suffering a similar fate himself.

Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, is back home from Florida for the holidays and plans to return in about a week to the Southland, where he has had a couple of bouts recently and is booked for some more. He has grown into a light-heavyweight and is boxing now under the management of Red Monahan, of Indianapolis, who also handles Roy Wallace.

Answer to query—Buck Crouse knocked out George Chip in three rounds in 1910. They also fought six no-decision bouts of six rounds each.

Fight Results

At Moose Temple—Tommy Crawley defeated Andy Andrucci, 10 rounds; Al Becker won by technical knockout over Billy Flanagan, 5 rounds; Marcus Noll won by technical knockout over Frankie Frey, 3 rounds; Joey Speigel defeated Tommy Ward, 6 rounds.

At New York—Midget Wolgast and Frankie Genaro drew, 15 rounds; Kid Francis defeated Irish Jimmy Slavin, 8 rounds; Lew Feldman defeated Vida Gregorio, 8 rounds; Billy Passamento defeated Mickey Donato, 5 rounds.

BIG WEEK-END SOCCER BILL

WEEK-END SOCCER CARD.

CENTRAL LEAGUE.
Today—Union Switch at Cities (McArdle).

KEYSTONE LEAGUE.
Tomorrow—Hays Curry at Bridgeville (Hafer); Finley Shannon at Donley (Washington).

M. & Y. LEAGUE.
Tomorrow — Gradstown at Elizabeth (Evans); Victory Hill at Mather (Lyons); Rolling at Herminie (Ensminger); Charleroi at Monown (Rutherford); Ventura at Fitz Henry (Pubo).

PANHANDLE LEAGUE.
Tomorrow—Bradley at Finley Shannon, Jrs. (McArdle); Heidelberg at Hessop (Cowan); Bower Hill at Cavendale (Cerra); Bridgewood at Mellenauer (Hart).

By TOM BIRKS.

Only one soccer game will be staged in the Pittsburgh district this afternoon. It will be a Central League affair and finds the Union Switch and Signal hooking up with the Pittsburgh Celtics at Leslie Park. This game will give the Green and White-clad Celtic outfit a chance to slip into first place.

Since the Celtics defeated Clan Douglas, the race has been wide open. If the Celtics cop today from Jack Thomas' outfit, Douglas will have a battle on its hands for the title.

Tomorrow a big list of games are scheduled for all of the leagues. Dunlevy, fresh from its Morgan victory, meets Fintex Shannon in the Keystone League, and Bridgeville entertains Curry boosters. Both should be good games.

NORWIN BEATEN BY MONESSEN

Homestead High School's basketball team won from Tarentum High's quintet, 30 to 21; Aspinwall nosed out Beaver Falls' five, 17-16, and Monessen walloped Norwin High's passers, 22-9, in district scholastic court battles yesterday.

New Castle High School's fast team advanced another notch by upsetting South High, of Youngstown, 27 to 17. Ford City whipped an Alumni team, 42 to 22, and Butler beat its graduates, 32-16.

MISS BAGGAGE COPS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Miss Baggage, Baron Long's 2-year-old filly, captured the $1,200 Faul City purse, feature of the Agua Caliente program yesterday. It was her third victory in four starts.

GAUTIER BEATS WOODS

LAKELAND, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Ted Gautier, Springfield, Mass., outpointed Kid Woods, Indianapolis, in the 10-round main bout here last night. Both weighed 120.

KLEIN BREAKS FIELDING RECORDS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Few outstanding defensive feats are reflected in the National League fielding figures for the 1930 season which are made public today. The advent of the lively ball seems to have given baseball's offense record achievements, some of which may be quite meaningless. The other side of the game doesn't show any drastic change in the averages.

Chuck Klein

Three former Pirates—Charley Grimm, Walter Maranville and Sparky Adams—were leaders in fielding at their respective, first base, shortstop and third base positions, the figures disclose.

It is nothing new for Grimm and Maranville to be among the leaders, as they long have been two of the game's most effective fielders, even in the face of being positively sensational in their ground-covering activities.

NEW RECORD FOR KLEIN

Grimm, as most of you know, is the captain of the Cubs—or was when the season ended; the Rabbit is captain of Bill McKechnie's Braves, while Sparky did hot corner duty for the flag-winning Cardinals. Hughey Critz, the Red-Giant star, topped the second basemen in fielding.

A new major league throwing record by that muscular young star of the Quakers, Chuck Klein, is one of the most interesting developments in the fielding numerals. Klein came through with 44 assists for the season, aided and abetted by the notorious right-field wall. This modern mark tops the 39 assists made by Harry Niles, of the St. Louis Browns, in 1906 and by Mike Mitchell, of the Reds, in 1907.

Klein, by the way, is one of the most improved players in the sport. When Burt Shotten acquired this lad for a small sum two years ago, he wasn't much of an outfielder, but last year he was a corker in snagging drives and throwing out daring runners. Chuck plays the caroms off the short fence and then follows through with accurate throws to the various bases.

Walter Roettger, of the Giants, led the outfielders in fielding. Leo Hartnett, of the Cubs, was in front among the catchers in a defensive way, and Ray Phelps, of the Robins, was the best fielder among the pitchers.

The league set a new record for double plays, with a total of 1,318. The former mark was 1,227, made in 1928.

BASED ON 100 GAMES

The fielding records season are divided into two groups, the first containing players who were at one position in 10 or more games, and the other showing those in less than 10 games; leadership at each position being based on 100 games or more.

Pitcher Kenneth L. Ash, Cincinnati, in the role of relief pitcher against Chicago on July 27, was credited with a victory although he pitched only one ball. In the sixth inning of this game, Ash relieved Benton with two men on base, and threw one ball to the batter, Grimm, who grounded into a triple play. Cincinnati scored four runs in their half of the inning, taking the lead, and Kolp pitched the remainder of the game, but Ash received credit for the victory.

New York leads the club in fielding with a percentage of .974, St. Louis made the most double plays, 176. Chicago had the most putouts, 4,214, and had the most runners left on bases, 1,180. Philadelphia made the most assists, 2,000, the most errors, 239, and had the greatest amount of total chances, 6,363. Brooklyn and Boston had the most passed balls, 14 each.

There were four triple plays made during the season, Cincinnati contributing two, and Brooklyn and Philadelphia, one each.

For the first time since 1908, National League clubs played through a season's schedule without any games remaining unplayed.

Shade welterweight argument in 1922 or to the Kid Williams-Pete Herman bantamweight affair in 1916 to find the latest previous world championship fight that ended in a draw, as did the Midget Wolgast-Frankie Genaro flyweight thing in New York last night, and you'd have to go back even farther to find one that was more disappointing. From all accounts, last night's so-called championship event was one of the sloppiest and most unsatisfactory exhibitions on which Eastern fans have been gypped in a long time, so poor up to the end of the tenth round that the referee had to threaten at that stage to chase both fighters out of the ring. It had been expected that Genaro wouldn't have much left, and with Wolgast also off color the farce was complete. The rule that takes away the pay of a fighter who loses on a foul, or part of his pay, could very justly have been applied to last night's principals, who didn't fight at all. Instead of clearing up the flyweight championship muddle, in which Wolgast is the champion in New York and Genaro holds the title in the 26 states of the National Boxing Association, the affair only indicated that on the form shown neither is entitled to be called the champion of anything. Willie Davies doesn't hold any titles, but he probably could have beaten both men in the same ring on an off night.

12 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS IN DISTRICT

Truck Driver Held Pending Inquiry Into Man's Death; Hit-Run Driver Sought

Twelve persons were injured late yesterday and last night in automobiles in the Pittsburgh district. Police held one driver pending investigation of a man hit by an automobile at Ambridge, while several others were under bond as a result of crashes.

Waldo J. Sharp, 18, of 1319 Rosedale street, was held at the Ambridge police station pending investigation by Dr. Harry C. McCarter, Beaver County coroner, into the death of Michael Kapela, 54, of 116 Maplewood avenue, Ambridge, yesterday. Kapela was struck at a grade crossing near the Pennsylvania Railroad passenger station at Ambridge. Sharp told police he was unaware the truck he was driving had struck Kapela until informed by a youth who was riding with him.

WOMAN INJURED

Mrs. O. J. Weber, 50, of 7309 Idlewild street, suffered a fractured right leg when she was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by F. F. Bickert, 56, of 112 Hornaday road, at Stanwix street and Liberty avenue. She was in the Allegheny General Hospital.

Struck by an automobile after he alighted from a street car at Sixth street and Duquesne way, J. E. Latnick, 20, of 224 Alries street, Mt. Oliver, sustained a fracture of the right arm and was taken to the same hospital. Police said they arrested Walter Renter, Jr., 20, of Virginia avenue, Aspinwall, as the driver.

Suffering brain concussion when she was struck by an automobile at Sixth avenue and Diamond street, Miss Gertrude Evans, 19, of 1315 Forbes street, was in Mercy Hospital. Roy G. Noble, 25, of 2742 Queensboro avenue, alleged driver of the machine, was arrested.

Knocked down by an automobile while directing traffic at the south end of the Manchester Bridge, Patrolman William Maynard suffered contusions of the arms. He arrested Joseph Frantz, 18, of Avella, as the driver, it was reported.

HIT-RUN DRIVER

A victim of a hit-and-run motorist, Michael Paliner, 44, of 507 West Fifth avenue, McKeesport, was in the McKeesport Hospital with injuries to the hip and elbow. Paliner was struck by the machine in Atlantic avenue, McKeesport.

John Agrine, 55, of 345 Dalton street, suffered a possible fracture of the skull and was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital after being struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Alex McConaghy, of Springdale, in East Ohio street, near the Thirty-first Street Bridge.

Helen Kelly, 20, of Evans City, sustained a compound fracture of the leg, and C. A. Craig, 40, of Butler, lacerations of the face and probable fractured ribs, when an automobile driven by Craig crashed into a parked truck in the Perry highway one and a half miles north of Wexford last night. The young women was sent to Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue, but Craig was permitted to go home after receiving treatment there.

HURT IN CRASH

Four persons were hurt when cars reported driven by Daniel Alburo, 18, and William Thornley, 19, both of Monongahela, crashed in Plum street, Elizabeth. Marian Sadler, 20, was crushed and taken to the Monongahela Hospital in a serious condition. Thomas Thornley, father of William Thornley, and Imogene Ewing, 18, of Monongahela, another passenger in the car, and Alburo were injured slightly, police said.

HIGHWAYS ICY IN MARYLAND

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Rain, intermittent throughout Maryland for 24 hours, turned to sleet in sections of Western Maryland and further west, combined with freezing temperatures to place a thin ice coating on the roads.

Frederick County received the heaviest sleet storm in several years, and traffic was made dangerous by the slippery sheath on streets of city and county.

The rain was reported to have frozen on the roads to make traveling hazardous. The government weather station at Keedsville forecast a total rainfall of more than half an inch.

Rum Cargo Found On British Schooner

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A cargo of 1,600 cases of intoxicants was found on the British schooner Albertine Adoue which went ashore off Oak Island, North Carolina, the Coast Guard has reported. The guardsmen valued the cargo at $80,000. None of the crew was aboard when the vessel was found. She was towed to Wilmington, N. C., where her cargo will be taken in charge by Federal officers.

Man Kills Wife, Self in Quarrel

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A man and his wife, parents of four small children, died in a murder and suicide termination of a series of family quarrels.

Charles E. Revington, 32-year-old glove worker, shot and killed his wife, 31, and then killed himself with the shotgun. The couple married six years ago in Allentown, Pa.

Dissuade Budding Criminals, Chief Urges Public

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Dec. 27.—Citizens can do much to alleviate crime conditions by helping to detect would-be criminals before they become law-breakers, in the opinion of Daniel J. Zelnyle, chief of the New Kensington police department.

Zelnyle's idea is to have both police and citizens win the confidence of those who intend committing crimes and dissuade them by friendship rather than by prosecution threats.

CONGRESS ACTS TO BALK BONUS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—Republican leaders in Congress have moved to head off the increasing drive for immediate cash redemption of the World War veterans' adjusted compensation certificates.

Representative Willis C. Hawley (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, announced that he has no intention of calling his committee together for a hearing on the proposal.

With Representative John N. Garner, of Texas, Democratic House leader, now in favor of the government paying cash for the present face value of the certificates, the Democratic ranks were expected to swing behind the proposition.

The proposal to reduce the interest rate on government loans to veterans on their insurance policies has gained headway. Hawley said he thought there was "merit" in the proposal to cut the rate from 6 to 4 per cent.

STRONGER AUTO LAWS URGED

The need for greater penalties for violators of automobile laws will be given attention when the state Legislature considers changes in the state motor vehicle code at its January session, it is stated in an article in the current issue of the Pennsylvania Motorist, publication of the Pittsburgh Motor Club. The article is written by A. A. Bluestone, chief defense counsel for the club.

Bluestone writes that there has been a continued cry among jurists, prosecutors and laymen in the state for more "teeth" in the state vehicle code in an effort to curb evidenet recklessness and apparent immunity from punishment of violators of the automobile laws.

WRECKED SHIP'S CREW LANDED

PORT ARANSAS, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The crew of seven of the lumber schooner W. J. Colle, which sank in the Gulf of Mexico off the Florida coast Sunday, was landed here yesterday by the Cities Service oil tanker Denver.

Capt. C. R. Myles and the other members of the schooner crew are all from Gulfport, Miss. They were picked up Monday 12 miles northwest of Tampa, after having been adrift for 19 hours in a small yawl with a meager supply of food and water.

Three ships passed the survivors before Capt. S. A. Simmons of the Denver sighted them two hours off his port side. Capt. Simmons, who is from Boston, refused to take credit for the rescue, regarding it as an incident of the sea.

GLOOM DECRIED BY FIRESTONE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The nation is returning to a normal condition after a period of too much pessimism induced by business depression, in the opinion of Harvey Firestone, tire manufacturer, here to spend the holidays with his family.

People appreciate the value of a dollar more now than they did in the days of extreme optimism, Firestone said, remarking:

Connie's Erstwhile Fiance Impresses Kitty

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The day before her marriage to Jim Tracy, wealthy Connie Calvert learns through Duke Garson, underworld character, of the existence of a half-sister, Kitty, by her father's secret first marriage. Kitty, a produce of the slums, demands $100,000 for her silence. Connie, glad to have found her sister, offers to take her home. Kitty refuses. Connie is favorably impressed by Duke's magnetism. When Jim objects to her interest in Kitty, Connie breaks her engagement. She realizes Jim is mainly interested in her money and that she does not love him. Connie tells her mother about Kitty. Connie sees Kitty and learns of her laborious daily struggle for existence. Kitty goes home with Connie and is welcomed by Mrs. Calvert.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX.

Right at the beginning Connie, with feminine intuition, realized that Jim Tracy impressed Kitty tremendously. Because of Kitty's presence, Jim did not attempt at tenderness toward Connie; instead he was, by every subtle action and intonation, charming and at ease with friendliness.

"I'm awfully glad to meet you, Miss Calvert," he said to Kitty. "You going to be up here in the country with us long?"

He was putting his best foot forward, and Connie had a thin, malicious pleasure in tilting at him.

"Oh, you needn't pretend you don't know all about her, Jim!" she said, smiling. "You're the first one I talked her over with, and there needn't be any pretense with us three. She's my sister, although we're not making that entire fact public at present."

Decision Final

But Jim Tracy was not at all confused.

"Well, I must say you're a good judge at picking out sisters," he smiled to Connie. "Did you tell her, too about the wedding that didn't come off?"

"She doesn't know all of the reasons—I'm not sure that I do myself—but she knows that we almost got married," Connie returned.

"That's good!" he said, with just a proper shade of embarrassment. "You can sympathize with my misfortune, can't you, Miss Calvert?"

"I'm sure she wouldn't mind if you call her Kitty," Connie interjected.

"Oh, sure!" Kitty said, agreeably. "Everyone does."

"I'm still trying to find out what happened to me," Jim went on, speaking easily. "This is the first time I've seen you, Connie, since you told me I was thrown over. I've been hoping, of course, that you would change your mind—"

"No, Jim. It's final. I'm afraid."

He smiled with a wry, romantic twist of his lips; rarely had Jim Tracy appeared to better physical advantage. Tonight he had about him just a touch of the haggard, to emphasize the strain he had been under. In his white flannels and blue jacket, he radiated, nevertheless, youthful and magnetic masculinity; his skin, slightly pale, was fresh and clear; his gray eyes were a little troubled, but there was a kind of humor in them, too.

"That leaves me high and dry, doesn't it?" he said, turning to Kitty.

Jim Intrigued

She sat luxuriously in a deep chair, her feet crossed and a cigaret between her fingers; the violet-blue eyes were fixed upon his face, but she was slightly in a shadow and the intensity of her gaze was not obvious.

"You'll get over it," Connie said, quietly.

"You're the kind that gets over it," Kitty returned. "I wouldn't like to be the girl that fell in love with you."

"Why?"

"Because she'd never be sure when you'd cool on her. There's something fickle about you—if you get me."

Jim Tracy laughed softly, and addressed Connie.

"Can you imagine it? I'm the faithful one and you cooled on me, as Kitty says; yet she tells me I'm fickle. Has she told you the same thing about yourself, Connie?"

"Not yet, and I don't believe she will," Connie smiled.

"I didn't mean that as a knock," Kitty said. "Maybe it's a good thing to have a rubber heart—I don't know. Don't pay any attention to what I say, Mr. Tracy."

"Call me Jim, will you, please?"

"Oh, Jim—"

He looked at her closely, beginning to be intrigued. "I'm sorry you don't like me, Kitty."

"I said I wouldn't like to be the girl to fall in love with you. There's a difference."

Connie was delighted to find that Kitty had a certain ableness in conversation, even though it verged slightly toward rudeness. The girl, for the first time in her life, was probably meeting a man used to the polite usages of life; yet she seemed perfectly poised. Her speech still smacked of Tenth avenue, but evidently she was watching her grammar. And it was obvious Jim Tracy was taken with her.

Leaves Pair Alone

"I wonder if you two will excuse me a few minutes," Connie said suddenly. "I think I'll run upstairs and see how mother is feeling before she drops off to sleep for the night."

Jim Tracy rose and pulled a chair aside that Connie might have a clear passage.

"Tell your mother I inquired after her and sent my love, will you?" he asked.

Mrs. Calvert was resting easily when Connie went up, and wanted to know all about Kitty's reaction to her new life.

"She's downstairs now talking to Jim like a veteran, and she has interest," Connie smiled. "Frankly, I like her a whole lot. After all, it's a risky thing to have a strange girl in the house, even if she happens to be my half-sister. But I think we haven't made a mistake."

"Mistake or not, we have a duty, and we will try to see it through as best we can," Mrs. Calvert replied. "I have observed, Connie, that not a great deal of happiness is achieved by acting against one's better instincts. I think the girl deserves all the kindness and love we can give her."

Connie grasped her mother's hands.

"You're a brick, mother. If this thing had hurt you, if it had shadowed your faith in father, you haven't let out one little squeal. How do you get that way, my dear?"

"Be gone, you baggage! You keep an amiable old lady awake with nonsense, and she'll probably turn surly if you don't get out of her bedroom and let her sleep."

When Connie returned to the veranda, the chairs occupied by Jim and Kitty were vacant; no one was in sight.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Sympathy Gag

Nell Jackson looked up from the easy chair by the window where she had been reading.

"All squared up?" she asked.

"It will be."

"Haven't you had it out with him yet?" Nell demanded harshly.

"Now, hold your horses, Nell; leave it to your little Ben, everything will be all right."

"All right?" Nell sneered. "All wrong. You'll be in jail and where will I be?"

"Sitting high and pretty, alongside of me, watching the races down in Havana."

"Listen, Ben, I know Simson as well as you do. Wasn't I there when he got you to come in and stake him ten grand so he could pull through? Didn't I watch you give him the double-cross right along? His first partner nearly cleaned him out and what happened?"

"Aw, lay off, Nell. Smith was clumsy, he had no more diplomacy than a goat. I can handle this so we'll both be taking a nice boat ride and fifty thousand of Simson's coin, and with Simson's pity and forgiveness."

Nell Jackson shook her head gloomily.

She realized that she had been a fool to take up with Ben Howard, quit her good job at Simson's and watch Sam play around night after night while she remained at home or went to see a picture. She was fed up, but what could she do now? And there was Edna Grey, the new stenographer in the office—Sam was chasing around with her altogether too much.

"Simson is going to mangle you, like he did Smithy—here, what you doing—drop that, Ben!"

Ben had an automatic in his hand. He has a miserable and sad expression on his usually genial face.

"It's the only way I can square things," he said, in a hollow voice and then he put the muzzle of the gun to his head and pulled the trigger.

Clever Act

"See? When I pull that Simson will be beside me. He'll grab my hand and tell me to stop, get me? It's what I meant by pulling my sympathy gag. I'll do some mighty tall and handsome acting around, and spill a lot of weeps and Simson, who is really soft-hearted, will forgive me. I'll tell him I lost everything in the market. I'll pretend I'm sick and got to go to a sanitarium for a rest, and then I'll pay him all back from my share of the profits of the business."

Nell Jackson nodded her head thoughtfully.

"I thought you'd try to grab the gun away from me, Nell," Ben said, reproachfully.

"I was too scared—I—I just couldn't move," she lied.

Ben grinned.

"Then I did it pretty well. That means I can fool Simson and he'll make a rush, grab the gat to save me and everything will be jake. I'm too clever to get on the wrong side of prison bars, Nell."

"I got to go out and see if I can get a discount on our steamer fare. By the time Simson expects me back from the sanitarium we'll be in South America with the fifty grand invested in a coffee plantation, a sure clean-up for us."

"Sure—you are right, Ben."

"I'm always right. When anybody gets the best of me he has to wait until he can catch me with both legs broken."

Ben Howard chuckled.

"I may have to go to the club with this ticket agent and kid him along, but I'll save about a couple hundred. He can give us first-class at third-class prices, you know."

Nell nodded.

Enters Office

"I want to look pale and worried," he said, with a grin, "because I'm pulling my sympathy gag this afternoon."

"Best of luck, Ben," Nell said.

And then Ben Howard came in.

One glance at Simson and Ben was sure that they were fifty thousand short and that only Ben could have taken it.

He sat down heavily and groaned.

Howard groaned and shoved the unopened mail away from him, but he managed to wink at Edna, who turned on her heel and went back to the outer office, humming a gay little song.

"Well?" Simson said at last.

"Come on—get it off your chest," Simson said.

"The market — the damned market—God, I ought to have jumped out of that twentieth floor window yesterday when I found I was wiped out."

Ben groaned again.

"You ain't bankrupt of words, are you?" Simson finally demanded, eyeing him coldly.

"I can see a way—there's a way," Ben muttered.

"There's a way, old man, and I am going through with it."

Sam shuddered again. He was feeling rather proud of his acting. Too bad it was being wasted—someone who knew he was acting out to see him—Edna Grey ought to see him.

"Be sure that it is a way that will enable you to come across with it, or it won't be any use of your going through with it. And speak up—I want action. I want my fifty thousand and I want it damned quick!"

"Everything was so rosy, I was sure I'd cop a quarter of a million on my investments — I planned to divide with you—surprise you."

"You surprised me enough when I found you'd copped my fifty thousand."

"And now the least I can do is the supreme thing a man can do—I can atone in only one way—misfortune has overcome me and I'm going to end everything—then I guess you will believe that my intentions were honest—I can't face the thought of being believed guilty—"

There was a bullet hole straight through his brain.

Edna Grey rushed in and saw what had happened.

"He shot himself, you fool," Simson growled at her.

"You lie! You lie! His revolver wasn't loaded at all, he was going to pull a sympathy gag—see, you'll find his revolver——"

Phones Police

Nell Jackson, out in a corner of the corridor, heard the shot. She stood, grimly, and waited. Officers came. Then she went into the office.

"Please go—this is no place for you, Nell. Ben has just killed himself," Simson whispered to her.

"I—er—suspected," Nell said, quite calm. "And say, if you go to Edna Grey's room you'll probably find your fifty thousand in cash."

"How do you know, Nell?"

"I heard them planning last night in a speakeasy booth. They were going to beat it to Havana tomorrow."

"Then why the devil did he shoot himself?"

"That's what puzzles me, Mr Simson."

Nell went back to the little apartment. She hoped that the man over in Jersey City would not suspect—then she bought the clip of cartridges from that she slipped in Ben's gun that morning before he was awake.

I ARRANGED FOR HIM TO BE THERE. PEGGY PHONED HIM SHE WAS LEAVING.
I KNOW THAT NERVY OAKDALE WAS AT THE DEPOT TOO, BECAUSE HE BOLDLY CALLED UP THIS HOUSE AFTER YOU AND PEGGY LEFT. OH DON'T DENY THAT YOU TOLD HIM PEGGY WAS GOING AWAY.
YES I DID. IN AN OFF-HAND WAY YESTERDAY AT LUNCH. AND I MADE A TERRIBLE MISTAKE TOO. PEGGY WAS SO BUSY LISTENING TO EL DORADO THAT SHE HARDLY HAD TIME TO EVEN BOW TO HARTFORD.
HA, FINE! SHE JUST BOWED TO THAT SHEIK, AND VERY COOLLY TOO, I'LL BET. THAT PROVES SHE ALREADY REGRETS LETTING THAT SILLY STORY OF OAKDALE BEING RELATED TO THE EL DORADOS MAKE HER CHANGE HER MIND ABOUT MARRYING MONTGOMERY.
LISTEN JO, I DON'T MIND ADMITTING THAT THE MORE I SEE OF EL DORADO THE CLEARER IT IS TO ME THAT MY FIRST IMPRESSION OF HIM WAS 100% RIGHT.
ONE WEEK AFTER A BABY LIKE EL DORADO BECAME MY SON-IN-LAW THERE'D BE A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER, ONE WAY OR ANOTHER, AND ANY JURY—
HA, WE'LL SEE ABOUT THAT. I KNOW AS WELL AS I'M STANDING HERE THAT PEGGY WILL BE SENSIBLE ENOUGH TO MARRY THAT MAN. HE'S ALL RIGHT. MY FATHER HAD THE SAME OPINION OF YOU THAT YOU HAVE OF MONTGOMERY. EXACTLY. AND YOU KNOW IT.

CONGRESSMAN FRISBY'S DAILY STATEMENT

WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

Friends and Neighbors—

That unemployed, homeless, penniless men get cold during cooled weather is a fact I assert, without fear or favor. The big interests have tried to muzzle me on this matter, but I will speak out. Furthermore, I will say, that many men get cold in the open because they are shiftless. They ought to take a good brisk walk! That's Frisby's remedy, and do not try to deny it. In order to give the unemployed an opportunity to walk and keep warm, I propose to build a treadmill connecting all the principal cities. The unemployed can be directed to go to the next town to look for work. As the treadmill walker will never reach the next town, we will not congest our cities with jobless men. And in the meantime he will keep nice and warm and feel more hopeful mentally. Good times are all in the mind, anyway.

Yours,
Hiram W. Frisby,
Congressman-at-Large.

Voting Machine Snarl

Common Sense Should Be Applied to the Problem—Brief Comment on Local News Items

The politicians have made a pretty kettle of fish of the voting machine situation. The Secretary of the Commonwealth discloses that difficulties of every imaginable sort have been raised against installation of the devices in a number of counties. Common sense seems to have been lost sight of.

Voting machines have been used successfully, without trouble worthy of mention, in other states for years, and in several Pennsylvania counties in the primary and general elections this year. It is impossible, therefore, not to suspect that malice and intrigue lie behind the efforts that are being made to prevent the installation of machines of the type that has stood the test of time and has a long period of satisfactory use to its credit.

*The opening of bids for the removal of city gar*bage and rubbish brings to mind the trouble that Pittsburgh has had, and some of the neighboring boroughs are still experiencing, in the disposal of such matter. Considerable improvement has been made in recent years, but all the objectionable practices have not yet been eliminated in the outlying communities. It is to be hoped, incidentally, that the time will come when such valuable by-products will be recovered from garbage that reduction companies will pay the city for the privilege of collecting it.

The Health Department's figures on the amount of garbage that comes out of Pittsburgh homes recall the saying that many a European family would live comfortably on the food wasted by the average American family. Pittsburghers certainly live bountifully, even in these days of business contraction. There are multitudes of people here who never know what it is to be ravenously hungry. Assured of the ability to satisfy their hunger they might enjoy the novel experience.

Father Cox performed an interesting experiment in choosing by lot a dozen men from the army of unemployed that he has been feeding and then outfitting them in new clothes from head to foot. It made new men of them in appearance, and must have had a heartening effect on their morale. It is not the coat that makes the man, to be sure; but there seems reason to believe that a man is more likely to act like a gentleman if he looks like one.

*It will no doubt be said that certain of the home*less men whom Father Cox attired so smartly betrayed by their faces that they were not to the manner born. There may be lines engraved by hardship and suffering which one would not find in the faces of persons who had had easy, prosperous lives. The condition of their teeth, too, might indicate that they had been unable to afford dental attention. But so far as the features of the physiognomy are concerned, there is nothing to distinguish the poor from the rich.

The State Game Commission's report that 26,000 deer were killed in Pennsylvania during the brief open season directs attention to a triumph of conservation—conservation, indeed, that seems to have been carried a little too far. The herd has increased to a point where it corroborates the Malthusian doctrine that population, unless checked by disaster, increases more rapidly than the food supply on which it depends.

Protected, except for a couple of weeks a year, from hunters: protected, too, from the predatory animals that keep their number down in their natural habitat, Pennsylvania's deer have multiplied so excessively that there is not enough forage for them. The consequence is that hundreds of fawns die of starvation every winter, while farmers complain of the forays made on their hay stacks and grain fields by the unfortunate animals.

Charles C. Cooper, director of Kingsley House, served the community in so many ways that in a brief estimate of his services it is difficult to decide on which to lay emphasis. He did a great deal of good as a social worker. Yet by many he will be remembered chiefly as a sponsor and secretary of the Hungry Club, that unique organization which has done so much to promote liberalism in Pittsburgh by bringing to its luncheons speakers representing every shade of opinion on every important public question.

*Cleveland is entertaining next week an organiza*tion which should be invited to meet in Pittsburgh, if not next year, then as soon as proper arrangements can be made. The organization is the American Association for the Advancement of Science, composed of many learned bodies. There is prestige for the city in which it holds its session, and education for the citizens. In the Mellon Institute for Industrial Research, the Carnegie Institute of Technology, the University of Pittsburgh and the research laboratories of our great industrial corporations the visiting scientists would find a congenial atmosphere.

*The killing of two persons by a train at Arnold di*rects attention to a dangerous grade crossing. The Burgess is right in his contention that in a place where traffic is so heavy the crossing should always be guarded by a watchman. The railroads, at considerable expense, have eliminated the worst of the crossings in the Pittsburgh district since automobile travel became heavy. They should not regard the work as completed until all have been eliminated.

The wish was expressed in these columns a few days ago that vigorous leadership might be forthcoming to force action on the new postoffice project. Mayor Kline's letter to the Treasury Department demanding to know what traffic arrangements are proposed for the building raises the hope that he may be the leader for whom Pittsburgh has been looking in this matter. More power to him!

*As if the proud claim of being the pioneer broad*casting station of the world were not enough honor for any radio station, KDKA has the additional distinction of being one of the most powerful. We are reminded of it by the announcement of a party of explorers who left New York yesterday on an expedition into the untrodden jungle of Brazil that they would keep in touch with the world through the local Westinghouse station. KDKA puts Pittsburgh on many a map.

*Oregon's secretary of state has informed Pennsyl*vania authorities that 1930 Oregon automobile licenses will be good until July 1, 1931. Pennsylvania has no such moratorium, yet numerous motorists have failed to obtain their 1931 license plates. If the delinquent auto owners are sensible, they will not run the risk of getting arrested next week for driving without a license, but will rush their applications to Harrisburg today.

A woman is always happiest when doing something for a man or sacrificing something for him—and complaining about it.

Isn't It So?

He that parleys has half surrendered.

He is great whose failings can be numbered.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—It sounds silly and no one will believe me, but this is the way it happened. I had been to the Palace the night before and watched a juggler kick off his shoes and catch them. I tried it with a house slipper and the heel whanged me in the eye.

It happened before breakfast and at first there was only a blotch of rosy pink so I waited around for it to disappear. But it suddenly became the poisonous green of wall paper and finally flared into a royal deep purple, tinted around the edges with a sickly yellow. It was a beaut!

Imagine trying to tell questioners you got a twister from hitting yourself with a slipper heel. I wouldn't believe that one myself. And I've fallen for whoppers. Usually when I go to my dining room around noontime there is no one there.

But today—reading from left to right—were my wife, my mother-in-law, two cousins from Ohio and a gentleman who has something to do with piano installment collections. There was nothing to do but face the music, so I popped in all merry and bright.

They were chattering away—all save the piano optimist who was holding his derby on his knee and waiting hopefully—but the minute they saw me they stopped and registered astonishment. "Who smacked you in the mush?" piped up one of the Ohio cousins—the one with the big mouth.

I tried to explain laughingly, ha, ha, ha, I must have run into something. "You must have! Probably a door knob" cracked the second cousin who has no respect for age and has been fired out of five colleges in two years. All the time I could feel that eye ballooning.

There is something about a closing optic that takes on the utter vacuity of a foolish grin. A moused eye and a bull fiddle are two things you cannot carry around with any degree of dignity. And you are a fool if you offer a single explanation soever.

* * *

It being necessary to go out in town on a few business errands, I tried to droop my hat brim over my eye farther than ever. But that's no good. Everywhere I was received with the same skepticism to say nothing of the Western Union messenger who breezed by inquiring: "How's the key-hole peeping these days, mister?"

* * *

I did think Frank Case, of the Algonquin, would be more understanding. He's been around and knows life. But no dice. Seeing my peeper, he exclaimed: "Columbus Circle on a Dark Night!" There was no letup anywhere. Even from a bus-top some one screeched: "Pipe the glimmer. There was a sock!"

* * *

The only comfort I received was from a medical man I met on the street and who told me few black eyes were from fist blows. People run into doors, hit themselves in sleep, fall in bath tubs and elsewhere, are jolted in taxis and sometimes you can black an eye trying to get a cinder out of it. So, encouraged, I told him how I got mine, but I didn't like the doubtful inflection of his: "That is quite possible"—the fathead.

* * *

I had no idea before a black eye stirred up so much suspicion. The minute you begin to explain you are greeted by a worldly eye-brow lift. The thing to do is to be close-mouthed and mysterious. Then the black eye takes on an aura of romance. If I had had any sense I could have been a hero instead of an object for sniggering.

* * *

O yes, I forgot to mention how uncommunicative my wife was. So quiet she made me nervous and fired me with an itch to explain. Arriving home from my errands she addressed me coldly by first name and said she wanted to talk to me in the bedroom. That always means something.

"How did you get that eye?" she asked, and I began to splutter, getting in hot water up to my neck for no reason at all. "See, I'll show you," I cried, and put on the slipper and kicked. All it did for more than a dozen times was just sail across the room in a straight line. "Yes, I see," she said quietly, and moved majestically out of the room, which certainly leaves me in a hell of a fix.

The Winding River of Knowledge

By Archibald Henderson

In the twentieth century science is engaged upon the most fascinating of all adventures—discovering the hidden secrets of a mysterious universe. Never in the history of the world have theorists been so abundant, or theories so short-lived. Science is like the famous rider who leapt upon his steed and rode off simultaneously in all directions. Ideas, theories, formulas follow each other in rapid succession; and the man in the street is dizzy with the fruitless effort to follow the kaleidoscopic changes on the scientific horizon. Under which banner? Newton or Einstein? Bohr or Dirac?

The result is inevitable—confusion in the popular mind, doubt as to which new theorist to follow. Is science really advancing? Or is it only dancing on a dime? Does it continue to progress? Or does it frequently retrograde, only the better to advance? Perhaps, says the layman to himself, I had better reserve judgment for the present. When doctors disagree—Until the scientists determine which theory is correct, the part of wisdom is to saw wood and say nothing. It is useless to make up your mind today, only to have it unmade tomorrow.

To the scientist, the situation is far from perturbing. On the contrary, it is in the highest degree encouraging and stimulating. It was Oswald who said that there is always an infinite number of hypotheses which may be advanced to explain any given set of experimental facts. The great variety of hypotheses now being advanced, in many fields of science, especially in mathematics, physics and astronomy, testifies to the extreme activity of the scientific mind today. Although many hypotheses may be advanced to explain a given set of experimental facts, these facts are connected with a mass of other facts.

The new theory, whatever it be, must not only explain the given set of experimental facts, but also be in accord with all the other discovered facts and truths of that science. A few months sometimes, and sometimes a few years, may be required to explode a given theory which explains the initial set of facts, but runs counter to some other phase of that particular science.

For example: Niels Bohr advanced a beautiful theory for the dynamic model of the atom; a solar system of central proton and satellite electrons. Already that theory has headed into serious difficulties, which as yet have not been overcome. Thus we can account for the wealth of new theories and the mergence of Schroedinger, Heisenberg, De Broglie and Dirac, each seeking to overcome the difficulties encountered by the theories of Bohr. Again, Planck in 1905 put forward the quantum theory, which assumes an essential discontinuity in the energies or notions of electrons which cause radiation. One year later Einstein showed that the photoelectric effect and many photochemical reactions could be explained in terms of the quantum theory if light itself consisted of discrete particles of energy.

Thus Einstein, following Planck, reverted to the ancient and supposedly exploded corpuscular theory of light. Both theories nowadays—the corpuscular and the wave theory of light—are accepted by scientists, and no success has been met in the effort to reject one of these theories in favor of the other. Both theories hold the field, rival sovereigns in the domain of optics!

As Jeans suggests, all scientists know that the river of knowledge not only forever broadens, but also repeatedly winds. It is impossible to determine the point of the compass toward which the stream will ultimately flow.

Text for Today Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.—John, xi:25.

A Dark, Powerful Savage

AMAZING, GIGANTIC FORTRESS, BUILT BY HAYTI'S NEGRO KING.

White kings that we read of daily—George of England; the earnest, sincere King of Italy; the tall, conscientious King of Belgium, the blond giant of Scandinavia—all are feeble beings compared with Christophe, known as King Henry I of Hayti, the gigantically powerful, ruthless Negro king who built the castle above.

The building of that huge fortress is a mystery, men do not understand how it was possible to do it merely by the labor of human hands. It is now a mass of ruins, and the powerful Negro whose will and savagery erected this building has turned to dust in his grave.

This combined fortress, palace and castle stands on the highest mountain top of Hayti, hundreds of feet above the original old trail that ended below the top.

Its great battlements supported hundreds of cannon. These, and the great stones of which the fortress was built, were carried up the steep hill by Negroes, working in terror of their giant master.

To that master, the fierce Christophe, human life meant nothing. Boasting of the discipline that he maintained among his soldiers and wishing to demonstrate it, he one day ordered several of them to march to the edge of a precipice, gave the order "Jump!" and, without hesitation, the men leaped to their death.

The king had ordered for his own protection a secret passageway, by which he could go, unseen, from his rooms in the palace-fortress to a remote part of the island. Nobody had the secret of this passageway except Besse, the engineer.

Some enterprising American traveler might spend interesting hours in Hayti looking for it, if allowed to do so.

This fortress, its history and the life of King Christophe show that it is possible to overdo even such a precious thing as human liberty.

The French had Hayti, and their control of the government passed to the partly civilized blacks, with full authority to rule as they chose.

Self-government at random is dangerous. Even the wise Woodrow Wilson did not realize that when he created little nations that had no natural existence, and thus planted the seeds for war. The war will come, probably, and those little nations will be as dead as King Christophe.

The British DO realize it, and they will be slow about allowing India to attempt self-rule.

This country, if wise, will do the same in the Philippines, with its mixture of Asiatics and Filipinos, its head hunters and the rest of its savagery.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

The goods of this world may not be divided as they should be.

It may be that you are unfortunate as a money-maker.

On the other hand you may be a good money-maker, but a poor saver.

Perhaps you have never grown up in a financial way.

As a child, you wanted to spend every cent that came into your possession.

It has been the same throughout your life, but with larger amounts.

You have not "stood prosperity" very well.

It has been easier to spend as you went than to control your desires.

You have had a fairly happy time through life and never burdened yourself with cares that would have added to your earning capacity.

You have had a good time and bought all you could pay for.

Now, your dose may be bitter, but it is yours to take and you will have to swallow it.
